Key tapes said not to exist

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said today that by listening to presidential tape recordings made April 14-15, Judge John J. Sirica can hear for himself that the tape ran out before recording a vital conversation with John W. Dean III.

The conversation between President Nixon and former presidential counsel Dean is one of two that the White House says was never recorded. It said so much had gone on in the office earlier in the day that the six-hour reel was filmed. A technical expert said apparently an automatic switching system to a back-up recorder did not work.

J. Fred Buzhardt, lawyer for the President, asked U.S. District Court Judge Sirica to employ electronic experts to determine "that the tapes are complete and have not been tampered with in any form."

Richard Ben Veniste, a Watergate prosecution force lawyer, concurred in Buzhardt's request and the judge asked both the prosecution force and the White House to suggest an expert.

Buzhardt told the court Wednesday that a telephone conversation between the President and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell was made on an instrument not connected to tape records. That reduced availability of nine subpoenaed White House Watergate recordings to seven.

"It was not until several weeks ago when the President considered disclosure that review of tapes by him was commenced," Buzhardt said.

"It was not definitely determined that the two conversations in question were not recorded until late last week," he said.

Buzhardt said he would call witnesses to show that the tape had exceeded its capacity of six hours conversation on Saturday, April 14 and early on Sunday — a time when technicians did not routinely check the recording devices.

"The judge himself can hearing the running out of the tape," Buzhardt said.

Secret Service technician Raymond C. Zumwalt, who installed and serviced the automatic recording equipment in the President's offices, was scheduled to testify before Sirica.

Through all the court fights, high-level statements, and eventual agreement by the President to comply with court orders, the existence of nine tapes sought by Watergate investigatorswas never questioned.

Deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren said at the White House that Nixon had been unaware until last weekend that specific conversations of June 20, 1972, and April 15, 1973, were not recorded.

Buzhardt told Sirica a four-minute conversation on June 20 between Nixon and Mitchell was on a telephone not connected to recorders.

And the April 15 conversation between the President nad Dean was "not redorded due to malfunctioning of the system or inadequacy of the system," Buzhardt told Sirica.

Warren explained that extensive conversations and discussions in Nixon's office on April 14 and 15 — prior to the Dean meeting had been recorded. But, he said, "when this conversation took place the first recorder had run out, filled up and the alternate recorder was not activated until the next day, the 16th."

April 15 was a Sunday. Zumwalt testified Wednesday that the equipment was serviced only on weekdays and that the switching system to a second six-hour reel apparently didn't work. He said it was the only failure he knew of.

The missing recordings include what Mitchell told Nixon in their first reported conversation following the Watergate break-in of June 20, 1972, and of what passed between Nixon and Dean in a meeting in which Dean said Nixon admitted discussing clemency as part of the Watergate cover-up.

The disclosure brought quick reaction from senators of both parties.

"As of this moment, President Nixon has the clear burden of satisfying the American people that he has been speaking the truth. If he fails in this, then we are faced with a political crisis of the most profoundly disturbing

Nixon stood on principle: Rebozo

MIAMI (AP) — President Nixon's fight to keep the White House tapes confidential was a stand on principle and was not made in fear of incrimination, The Miami Herald quotes Nixon's closest friend as saying.

In a copyright story, the Herald in today's editions quotes C.G. "Bebe" Rebozo as saying in a rare personal interview that Nixon was motivated "by the same character and same high principles" which he exhibited in refusing to contest the Illinois vote in his 1960 loss to John F. Kennedy.

"I'm fairly logical and it's hard for me to conceive that a man would sit there talking to people, being the only one that knew that it was being recorded and say something that might incriminate him," Rebozo was quoted as telling Herald reporters.

"I believe again he was standing on principle and he didn't want to not only violate the separation of power but he didn't want to condemn future presidents to the same situation by giving in."

The Herald said Rebozo made his statements in an Wednesday interview, the first granted by Rebozo since Nixon became president in 1969.

Rebozo, a close friend of Nixon's since 1950, said, "He's not the kind of man that you would necessarily warm up to immediately," the Herald reported.

The newspaper said he characterized the President as "a unique person ... a very deep thinker ... dedicated to his country.

"But he is so dedicated to his country and his job that he doesn't have time for the normal small talk that people frequently relax indulging in."

The Herald said Rebozo denied that his Key Biscayne bank had operated a private investment fund on Nixon's behalf and that he also defended his handling of a $100,000 campaign contribution from billionaire Howard Hughes.

He said a 12-week investigation by the Internal Revenue Service had cleared him of any wrongdoing in the contribution, the paper said.

The Herald quoted Rebozo as saying he did not tell Nixon of the Hughes money until almost two years after receiving it in 1969 and did not return the money until "well after" the IRS probe began.

He said if the IRS had not become interested "the money would have been used in the '74 Congressional campaign," the newspaper said.

The Herald said Rebozo complained during the interview that he and his bank have suffered "just unbelievable" harassment by investigators from the Senate Watergate committee.

New attorney general, prosecutor nominated

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today named Sen. William B. Saxbe as attorney general and approved the selection of Leon Jaworski as new Watergate special prosecutor with full independence and safeguards against being fired.

The President promised not to discharge Jaworski, as he had Archibald Cox, without obtaining the consent of House and Senate Democratic and Republican leaders and top members of the two judiciary committees in Congress.

Nixon appeared personally in the White House briefing room to announce his nomination of Saxbe, an Ohio Republican who is not seeking re-election, as successor to Elliot Richardson, who resigned Oct. 20 rather than follow Nixon's orders to fire Cox.

The President, without answering questions, then turned the podium over to acting Atty. Gen. Robert Bork, who announced that Jaworski would become special prosecutor to pursue "the Watergate matter and related subjects."

Bork said that Jaworski has been "promised the full cooperation of the executive branch." Should Jaworski decide that he needs presidential documents, Bork said, "there will be no restrictions placed on his freedom ..."

Bork said Jaworski, a confidant of the late President Lyndon B. Johnson, would have the same broad mandate which had been given Cox. In addition,

Jaworski

Bork said that Nixon has given "his personal assurance" that he will not fire Jaworski without first consulting with the specified congressional leaders and "ascertaining that their consensus is in accord with his proposed action."

The firing of Cox after his refusal to abide by Nixon's orders to drop efforts in court to obtain confidential White House tapes and documents touched off a massive controversy and triggered moves to start impeachment proceedings.

Bork underscored the same point

Perjury denied by Kleindienst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former Atty. Gen. Richard S. Kleindienst denies he committed perjury by failing to tell the Senate about President Nixon's order to drop an antitrust suit against ITT and his own threat to resign rather than obey.

Kleindienst repeatedly stated under oath during 1972 hearings before the Senate Judiciary Committee that there was no White House pressure on him to halt the antitrust suits against International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

He acknowledged in a statement Wednesday that Nixon telephoned him on April 19, 1971, and, "without any discussion, ordered me to drop the appeal" of one of the three parallel lawsuits.

He defended his Senate testimony by saying he "was not asked whether I had had any contacts with the White House at the time of this decision, and I did not deny any such contacts."

But an examination of the two volumes of the hearing record shows that Kleindienst was asked repeatedly about the sequence of events on April 19.

And he was asked several times if he had ever had any contacts with the White House concerning the ITT case.

He repeatedly denied any contacts amounting to pressure or directions and conceded only that the matter may have been mentioned in some of the many casual conversations he had with White House officials.

Kleindienst disclosed for the first time that the controversy forced him to the brink of resigning.

By his account, former presidential adviser John D. Ehrlichman called him on April 19 "and stated that the President directed me not to file the appeal in the Grinnell case ... I informed him that we had determined to take that appeal, and that he should so inform the President."

Nixon called moments later,

Ford would act as conciliator

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice-President-designate Gerald R. Ford offered himself today as a conciliator between the White House and Congress as hearings opened on his nomination for the nation's second highest executive job.

At the same time, members of the Senate Rules Committee considering his nomination noted that Ford's selection might prove as important as the choice of a President.

"I believe we all realize that the nominee of today may not only be the vice president of tomorrow but could be the president of next year," Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., said in an opening statement.

In his opening statement Ford said he could serve as "a ready conciliator and calm communicator" between a beleagured Republican President and a Democratic-controlled Congress.

The 60-year-old Michigan congressman said he had supplied complete personal and political financial records because of the great importance of the inquiry.

Committee Chairman Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., said the present crisis in which Ford was nominated by President Nixon to replace the resigned Spiro T. Agnew marked a turning point in the status of the vice presidency.

"I believe the time is over when the presidential nominee of either party can select his running mate as an afterthought," Cannon said. "The committee should consider this no less than the selection of a president of the United States."

But Cannon said while the coomittee wants "the most searching inquiry" it will not get bogged down in argument over Ford's voting record in Congress.

"If this committee were to indulge in an ideological tug of war over Mr. Ford, we would be denying the right of the President to chose whom he wants," Cannon said.

In another opening statement, Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania expressed his "full support and entire confidence of Gerald Ford."

Ford told the committee he is no saint but is qualified for the job and said he could serve as a helping hand in the midst of governmental crisis.

"I believe you and the Congress and the American people must become fully satisfied that I am worthy of your trust and that I am fit to perform the duties of the vice presidency," Ford told senators prepared to question him about his handling of campaign contributions.

"I am not a saint, and I'm sure I have done things I might have done better or differently or not at all," the House GOP leader added. "I have also left undone things that I should have done."

"But I believe and hope that I have been honest with myself and with others, that I have been faithful to my friends and fair to my opponents, and that I have tried my best to make this great government work for the good of all Americans," Ford said.

His eight-page opening statement dealt with general philosophy and his view of the vice presidency, leaving it to the questioning by the nine Rules Committee members to go into financial and other questions raised in the FBI probe of Ford.

Nixon has Mideast foes in same city for one day

WASHINGTON (AP) — For today, at least, President Nixon seemed to have the Egyptians and Israelis where he wanted them — in the same city talking about a Middle East settlement.

However, despite their presence here at the same time, Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir and Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy did not come to Washington to talk to each other. Instead, they came separately to plead their own special interests and to obtain as much support as possible from Nixon for positions that appear to be in direct conflict.

Before her breakfast meeting today with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and a noon session with the President, Mrs. Meir told reporters that problems and questions had arisen out of her country's relationship with the United States.

She asked to talk with the President and Kissinger to "seek answers and clarifications," Mrs. Meir said upon her arrival Wednesday afternoon.

She described as "an oversimplification" reports Israel had been subjected to undue pressure from the United States concerning cease-fire lines.

Meanwhile, in Tel Aviv Wednesday, an Israeli military command spokesman said dozens of trucks carried emergency supplies for the Egyptian 3rd Army through Israeli Suez Canal lines.

A relief operation for the 20,000 men of the encircled military force was in its third day on the southern end of the waterway. The Israeli military spokesman said the cargoes of about half of a 125-truck convoy had been shipped to the east bank of the canal.

In Cairo, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat continued to refuse to exchange Israeli war prisoners until Israel pulled back to the Oct. 22 cease-fire lines established by the U.N. Middle East truce.

He also said that, once the Israelis withdraw, Egypt would be willing to "start immediately with peace talks" in an international peace conference under U.N. sponsorship.

U.S. officials privately acknowledged they would prefer an Israeli pullback and Mrs. Meir didn't deny being aware of the American position.

In fact, some Israeli sources said one of the goals of her visit is to convince Nixon not to back her government against the wall on the issue.

They said the United States should realize Israel is a democracy and subject to popular pressures, particularly on matters involving prisoner exchanges and territorial gains.

Mrs. Meir also was expected to seek assurances that the United States, in its effort to appear even-handed, is not wavering on its position that outside powers should not impose a settlement on the Middle East.

Egypt continues to insist publicly that it will not negotiate directly with Israel, although it would attend an international conference once the Israelis withdrew to the Oct. 22 lines.

Privately, there are indications Egypt may be more flexible. U.S. officials said they were pleasantly surprised by Fahmy and predicted important progress within weeks.

In fact, it was Fahmy's visit and the reports of his friendly reception that caused Mrs. Meir to suddenly come to Washington.

She is said to have felt it was time to re-establish the image of her close personal relationship with Nixon.

Mrs. Meir will stay in the United States until Saturday, taking advantage of the opportunity to talk with influential businessmen and members of Congress.

U.S. sources agreed with suggestions that these contacts will result in public and private commitments of support.

Trick or treater dies in freak accident

NEW YORK (AP) — A 12-year-old trick or treater died in what police termed a freak accident after the youth and his friends were accosted by a man who warned them not to come to his apartment.

Police said the boy, Kevin Frink, was nearly decapitated Wednesday night when he accidentally stuck his head through an already broken glass window in an elevator door during a scuffle with James Logan, 22.

Logan is a resident of the same apartment building where the dead youth lived.

Frink was dead on arrival at St. Lukes Hospital.

Kasten eyes Lucey job

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — State Sen. Robert Kasten, R-Brown Deer, said Wednesday he would seek the GOP nomination for governor next year if he can obtain sufficient financial support.

Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, a Democrat, can be defeated, Kasten told the Milwaukee Sentinel, and "a person like myself would be an excellent candidate."

He said he would make an official announcement next spring if he uncovers enough support for his candidacy.

Kasten, 31, said he is certain he will run for some statewide office, perhaps state treasurer. But he said he would prefer to run for governor.

Republican Atty. Gen. Robert Warren has been generally considered the leading GOP candidate to oppose Lucey. But it has been reported that Warren could be in line for appointment to a U.S. District Court judgeship.

Kennedy the culprit

Drug issue 'theft' irks Nelson

BY TIM WYNGAARD
Special to The Post-Crescent

WASHINGTON — The two Senators would never admit it publicly, but the staffs of Gaylord Nelson and Edward Kennedy are slapping at each other.

It is being interpreted here as a direct result of the strong presidential desires of Kennedy — or at least of those who have gathered around him seeking a shot at the presidency.

It involves the blatant theft of an issue that Nelson has championed for the past half dozen years or more.

And it involves a violation of an agreement that liberal Democrats thought they had made among themselves, only to be broken on the floor of the Senate by Kennedy.

Nelson has been the leading Senate champion on drug law reform, pushing for a pricing and sales regulation system to break what many consider to be a monopolistic sales structure that pushes drug prices in the U.S. far above justified levels.

It is an issue with a substantial amount of political appeals.

Nelson's staff recently was contacted by Kennedy's staff seeking information about the issue. Kennedy's assistants indicated the Massachusetts Democrat wanted to do "something" about the matter.

Nelson's staff explained that the Wisconsin lawmaker had long been in the field, and that he would like to be associated with whatever Kennedy tried to do in the field.

Kennedy's assistants assured Nelson's office of cooperation, asking them to check back on an afternoon some days later.

On the morning of the day set for the meeting, Kennedy's office announced that he would conduct hearings on drug pricing and monopoly practices, and gave no indication that Nelson's long standing work in the field would be considered.

Nelson sought out Kennedy on the Senate floor, and was assured that it was a misunderstanding, and that Nelson's legislation would be considered in the hearings.

It reminded some of the agreement among liberals to push through a campaign reform bill in the Senate without raising the issue of public financing of campaigns.

The liberals agreed the need for reform was immediate, and that the public financing issue — which most backed — could be considered separately.

That agreement fell apart with a bang on the Senate floor when Kennedy popped up with an amendment calling for public campaign financing.

While liberals looked daggers, Kennedy won wide attention from the press gallery.

Liberals were forced to vote to table the public finance issue — something they did not want to do in a philosophical sense — to insure passage of the campaign reform bill.

Again, the move was a direct result of advice Kennedy received from top staff assistants, according to sources surrounding other liberal Democrats.

The presidency — or the desire to capture it — is strong medicine, Senate Democrats are discovering.

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Women baffled over the use of tampons

I get enough letters to indicate there remains a good deal of bafflement about the use of tampons. To wit, these:

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am an average, healthy 17-year-old girl and my menstrual periods are regular and normal. My problem is that I am unable to use tampons as they cause me a great deal of pain. Can you give me any explanation? Will it affect my sex life? —L.H.E.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have just begun to use tampons and wonder if they are good for me. Do they stop the flow or does it just seem that way? Some people say such protection doesn't allow complete drainage of menstrual flow. How long should a tampon be kept in? The instructions aren't very clear on this. Is it safe to go swimming? — G.K.W.

For Miss L.H.E.: The probable answer (and it is not uncommon) is that the opening in the hymen is too small. This can be corrected surgically, without great difficulty, but short of that, the only solution would be to use a junior size tampon, which is available. Or if even that fails, external protection is the answer. Your sex life will not be affected.

For Miss G.W.: Tampons do not harm health in any way, and they do not stop or inhibit menstrual flow. They are designed to absorb more than you realize.

There's no specified time for a tampon to be left in because rate of flow varies from person to person. Some girls have to change oftener than others.

Yes, they are satisfactory for swimming.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you print some facts about birth control in your column? What time of the month is the safest for marital relations? Can I get birth control pills without going through a Pap test? —G.T.

I had a whole series on this subject not many months ago. The information is also available in booklet form. Why don't you send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to me, in care of The Post-Crescent for my booklet, "Birth Control Methods"?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I usually tan quite easily in summer and get dark fast. This year I got terribly burnt in a very short time for the first time in my 22 years. I have been on birth control pills for nine months. Could there be a connection? —B.

It is not something that happens to most people, but it does bother some who are on the pill. You might switch to some other form of contraception and see what happens next year.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a son who has been married 10 years. They have no children. I often wondered why but never had the nerve to ask for fear I would be too nosy. Anyway, my son happened to tell one of his close friends that he is sterile. I wonder if this has anything to do with the fact that when he was a young boy he had a bad case of mumps. Will you please explain what "sterile" means? I feel so bad thinking that maybe somewhere along the line I have done something wrong. I don't have anyone to ask, so I turn to you. — R.M.M.

The mumps might have caused him to be sterile. In young children that rarely happens, but as they grow older, mumps can damage the glands that produce sperm, which is necessary to conceive children. That's what "sterile" means. The sperm is not produced in the necessary quantity, or it is imperfect, and prevents having children.

I am sure there was nothing you did do, or didn't do, that had anything to do with it.

"You Can Stop Sinus Trouble" is the title of Thosteson's newly revised booklet explaining what sinus trouble really is and encouraging sinus sufferers to do something about it. For a copy, write to him in care of The Post Crescent, enclosing a long, self addressed (use ZIP code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Today in history

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, Nov. 1, the 305th day of 1973. There are 60 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1952, the United States exploded the first hydrogen bomb at Eniwetok Atoll in the Marshall Islands.

Also, on this date:

In 1765, some American colonists defied their royal governors as the British Stamp Act went into effect.

In 1788, the U.S. Continental Congress, which had first met in 1774, was adjourned.

In 1864, the U.S. Post Office introduced postal money orders.

In 1940, British bombers hit Naples, Italy, for the first time in World War II.

In 1945, the British announced that all evidence indicated that Adolf Hitler had killed himself in a bunker in Berlin.

In 1950, two Puerto Rican nationalists tried to force their way into Blair House in Washington to try to assassinate President Harry S Truman. One of them was killed by guards. Ten years ago: The South Vietnamese government of President Ngo Dinh Diem was overthrown in a coup staged by the country's armed forces.

Five years ago: South Vietnam reluctantly agreed to a bombing halt of North Vietnam.

One year ago: 22 Americans were killed when their helicopter crashed into the Mekong River Delta of South Vietnam.

Today's birthday: Singer Victoria de los Angeles is 49 years old. Thought for today: You don't set a fox to watching the chickens just because he has a lot of experience in the hen house. President Harry S Truman.

Racine school balloon recovered in Kentucky

CYNTHIANA, Ky. (AP)—The flying object that drifted down on Kenneth Whittaker's farm in Harrison County didn't stay unidentified for long.

Whittaker discovered two balloons with a card attached reading: "Franklin County Elementary School, Room 252, Racine, Wisconsin."

The message said the balloon was released Monday as part of a weather experiment and asked that the card be detached and returned to the class.

Officials indicted in Illinois

CHICAGO (AP)—A one-time member of the Illinois House and six former suburban officials have been indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of bribery, conspiracy and tax evasion in connection with zoning changes in suburban Hoffman Estates.

One of the nation's largest home construction companies, Kaufman & Broad Inc., also was charged Friday in the indictment.

The indictment charges that the company paid the officials to obtain zoning changes.

James R. Thompson, U.S. district attorney, said the corporation funneled bribes to the mayors and trustees of the suburb through Barnard M. Peskin, who was an attorney for Kaufman & Broad. He was a state representative from 1958 through 1966.

The government charged that Kaufman and Broad sought the zoning variations to construct 1,480 homes on 410 acres of a development known as Barrington Square.

Navy promotes Denton

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jeremiah A. Denton Jr., one of the senior Naval officers held prisoner in North Vietnam, has been named commandant of the Armed Forces Staff College in Norfolk, Va.

Denton, who was promoted from captain to rear admiral after his release, will report for duty in January.

Denton was the first prisoner of war to step off a plane in the Philippines after a flight from North Vietnam.

Property gifts subject to taxes

(Fourth of a five-part series)

Fundamental changes in the gift and estate tax rules of this country are under way—but they won't be made in time to apply to 1973.

So, if you are planning to distribute gifts to members of your family either on a one-shot basis or as part of an overall estate planning program, now—in these weeks before 1973 ends—is when you should make your moves.

Here are your prime guides:

A gift of property (other than to a charitable organization) is subject to a federal gift tax unless it comes within the specific exemptions and exclusions in the gift tax law. When you make major gifts, therefore, try to keep within these exemptions and exclusions.

$30,000 lifetime exemption

You are entitled to a $30,000 exemption for the value of all the property and money you give away during your lifetime. When the cumulative total of your gifts through the years tops $30,000, your excess is hit by the federal gift tax.

In addition, you can exclude from tax, in every year, gifts of up to $3,000 each to any number of persons. Only the amount over your $3,000 annual exclusion per donee counts against your $30,000 lifetime exemption.

As an illustration, say you give $5,000 to each of two children this year. The first $3,000 of each gift is protected from the gift tax by the $3,000 annual exclusion for each donee. But $4,000 is left unprotected.

Assuming you have not made previous gifts, your $30,000 lifetime exemption will shield the $4,000 in 1973.

This will use up $4,000 of your lifetime exemption and leave you with $26,000 for gifts during the rest of your life.

If you and your wife—or your husband—are making the gifts, the $30,000 lifetime exemption and the $3,000 annual exclusion per donee can in effect double to $60,000 and $6,000.

Your key to avoiding gift tax as long as possible is to take full advantage of your annual $3,000 exclusions—for you cannot carry the unused portion in any one year over to later years as you can carry over unused portions of the $30,000 lifetime exemption.

Law doesn't allow carryover

For instance, say you give your child $1,000 in 1973 and $5,000 in 1974. The $2,000 unused portion of your 1973 exclusion for your child won't do you any good in 1974. But the $2,000 over your $3,000 annual exclusion for that child in 1974 will be charged against your $30,000 lifetime exemption.

Your proper year-end tax strategy is: raise your 1973 gift to your child from $1,000 to $3,000 and cut your 1974 gift from $5,000 to $3,000.

You are thereby making maximum use of your $3,000 annual exclusion per donee in each year and you are not unnecessarily using up any portion of your one and only $30,000 lifetime exemption.

A fascinating—and money-saving—aspect of year-end gifts in this year of Watergate involves political contributions. And since you can now get a tax break for a limited total of political contributions you make in the closing weeks of 1973, you can use to advantage the following basic guides:

The new tax break on political contributions can be taken either as a direct credit that reduces your tax or as an itemized deduction that cuts your taxable income. If you itemize your deductions, you can choose the credit or the deduction—whichever gives you the better tax advantage. If you take the standard deduction, you can benefit only from the credit.

About political contributions

The direct credit against your income tax is allowed for half the amount of your qualified political contributions—up to $50 if you are married and filing a joint return, up to $25 if you are single. Your maximum credit on a joint return is $25 and on a single return is $12.50, therefore.

You may take an itemized deduction for your qualified contributions up to $100 on a joint return and up to $50 if you are single.

If you take a standard deduction on your 1973 return—as millions of you will if you file Form 1040A next April—you'll be able to get a tax break for your qualified political contributions in 1973 only by claiming the direct credit.

The central point to consider before year-end is that the tax law now gives you a worthwhile break if you decide to support a political party with a modest contribution of money.

Tomorrow: How To Use Income Averaging.

Chamber of Commerce drive nets 30 members

KAUKAUNA — Thirty new members were signed up in the recent Heart of the Valley Chamber of Commerce membership drive, according to President Marvin Schumacher. Membership now stands at 175.

Schumacher also said that several volunteer workers still were making contracts with potential members and he expected a few additional memberships before the drive is concluded. The Chamber is made up of business, industry and professional men from Kaukauna, Kimberly, Combined Locks, Darboy, Little Chute and Hollandtown.

Identification of laggard voters from poll list

Post-Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON — Political office candidates and their campaign managers would find it easier to identify laggard voters under the terms of a bill pending in the state Assembly under the authorship of Rep. John Gower, R-Green Bay.

The measure proposes to require election workers to post notices of the voting list outside each polling place at 4 p.m. on election day, providing a listing of those persons who have already voted.

Police & fire beat

Appleton firemen were called to the Edward Smith residence, 1230 E. Randall Ave., after a television set caught fire there at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The transformer and wiring were burning when they arrived, and they used a carbon dioxide extinguisher to put out the flames. A smoke ejector also was used.

Cause of the fire was unknown.

Gordon A. Kray, 549 N. Douglas St., reported a theft and vandalism to his car while it was parked late Tuesday at his service station at 1235 W. Wisconsin Ave.

Kray told police the battery was taken, an antenna was bent and the air was let out of all four tires.

HORTONVILLE — Art Ellerman, route 2, Hortonville, reported the theft of about $125 in cash and assorted checks late Tuesday from the Willow-Run Kennels on U.S. 10, two miles west of U.S. 45. Entry reportedly was gained through a rear door.

KAUKAUNA — Eugene Wolf, 200 S. Main Ave., reported to police that last Thursday or Friday someone entered his garage and stole a double snowmobile trailer valued at $200.

Weicker reveals plan to gag unfriendly media with federal power

BY JANET STAIHAR
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former presidential adviser Jeb S. Magruder once promoted a White House plan to use three government regulatory agencies to silence what the administration called unfair news media coverage, says Sen. Lowell P. Weicker.

The Connecticut Republican said Wednesday night that a memorandum authored by Magruder recommended that the Internal Revenue Service, the Justice Department's antitrust division, and the Federal Communications Commission be used to control criticism from the news media.

Weicker, a member of the Senate Watergate Committee, said Magruder's memorandum, dated Oct. 17, 1969 and titled "The Shot-gun versus the Rifle," was intended for White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman.

The senator made the memorandum public in an interview on WETA's "Martin Agronsky's Evening Edition" television program. The Associated Press also obtained a copy of the document from a source on the Senate Watergate committee.

"It is my opinion this continual daily attempts to get to the media or to anti-administration spokesman because of specific things they have said is very unfruitful and wasteful of our time," Magruder said in the memorandum.

"When an editor gets continual calls from Herb Klein or Pat Buchanan on a situation that is difficult to document as to unfairness, we are in a very weak area," wrote Magruder.

Magruder reportedly enclosed along with the memorandum descriptions of about 21 requests from President Nixon for action relating to "what could be termed unfair news coverage."

Magruder went on to say that "we should begin concentrated efforts in a number of major areas that will have much more impact on the media and other anti-administration spokesman and will do more good in the long run."

He listed these suggestions:

—"Begin an official monitoring system through the FCC as soon as Dean Burch is officially on the board as chairman. If the monitoring system proves our point, we have then legitimate and legal rights to go to the networks, etc., and make official complaints from the FCC.

"This will have much more effect than a phone call from Herb Klein or Pat Buchanan.

—"Utilize the antitrust division to investigate various media relating to anti-trust violations. Even the possible threat of anti-trust action I think would be effective in changing their views....

—"Utilizing the Internal Revenue Service as a method to look into the various organizations that we are most concerned about. Just a threat of a IRS investigation will probably turn their approach."

Magruder also suggested that what the White House considers unfair news coverage could be further squelched by giving preference to "favorites within the media."

"I'm not saying we should eliminate the open administration," said Magruder, "but by being open we have not gotten anyone to back us on a consistent basis and many of those who were favorable towards us are now giving it to us at various times...."

Weicker said the Senate Watergate panel has had the document in its possession for some time but he did not indicate how it was obtained. He said he decided to release the memo because of the White House's strong criticism of the press lately.

In his Oct. 26 news conference, President Nixon said, in specific reference to television, "I have never seen such outrageous, vicious, distorted reporting in 27 years of public life."

Buchanan, Nixon's key speechwriter, said on the CBS Morning News last Monday that broadcast networks have too much power in the U.S. news reporting.

He said he felt "every legal and constitutional means ought to be considered in order to break up that dominance in order to spread it out so that you decentralize power in the area."

Burch assumed the FCC chairmanship Oct. 31, 1969, for a seven year term.

Houdini escape record broken

NEW YORK (AP) — Escape artist Mario Manzini, who sees himself as the heir of Harry Houdini, has broken one of the legendary master's records.

As television cameras turned Wednesday and an advance man delivered a carnival spiel, Manzini poised at the eight-foot end of a hotel swimming pool.

"If I can't get out," he proclaimed, "I don't want anyone jumping in to get me."

He then plummeted to the bottom, fettered by 13 sets of handcuffs.

Wiggling and twisting in silver-studded bikini swim trunks, Manzini struggled with the restraints on his arms, about 40 pounds of deadweight metal.

And, swoosh, back to the surface — free, in 46 seconds.

"Forty-six seconds. Whew!" exclaimed Manzini, 29, who grew up in the Bronx. "Houdini was watching me, wherever he is."

Houdini's own best effort at this event is said to be 90 seconds underwater, six sets of handcuffs, 1925.

Halloween was chosen as the date for the record attempt. It marks the 47th anniversary of Houdini's death at the age of 52. Houdini grew up in Appleton.

3 from IRA escape by air

DUBLIN (AP) — The helicopter escape of three Irish Republican Army chieftains from a Dublin jail on Wednesday has embarrassed Prime Minister Liam Cosgrave's government and dismayed the British army commanders in Northern Ireland.

The three — former chief of staff Seamus Twomey; Kevin Mallon, the former second-in-command, and Joe "J.B." O'Hagen, the guerrillas' master gunrunner — were considered key leaders of the IRA's Provisional Wing.

A hijacked helicopter dropped down into the exercise yard at Mountjoy Prison Wednesday and swept the three men away while the guards looked on, thinking it was an army chopper. The men were flown to a deserted racetrack outside Dublin and a car took them away in the direction of Howth, a fishing village.

Troops and police combed the countryside, roadblocks were set up on all highways to Northern Ireland and fishermen were questioned. But there was no trace of the missing men.

Authorities on both sides of the border suspect the three Roman Catholic militants were sprung to organize a new IRA offensive. "I'd say we can expect trouble pretty soon," said one British army officer.

The escape was already becoming a legend. Someone in the Catholic Ardoyne quarter of Belfast had written a song about it.

"It's the best news we've had in a long time," said an IRA sympathizer. "We're not beaten yet."

William Whitelaw, Britain's administrater in Northern Ireland, was reported "furious," and the Rev. Ian Paisley, the fiery Protestant hardliner, commented: "This just goes to show that the Cosgrave government is no more able to deal with the IRA than the British government."

Stormy criticism of the Cosgrave regime was expected today in the Dail, the Irish Parliament.

Contamination found in hamburger

NORWALK, Conn. (AP) — A national consumer publication said today that a spot check of ground beef bought in supermarkets in seven major U.S. cities last month found the meat was "often contaminated with fecal bacteria."

Media and Consumer magazine, a monthly published by Media and Consumer Foundation, a nonprofit public service organization based here, said: "What can be concluded ... is that the consumer has no present assurance that the ground beef he is purchasing is free of disease-producing organisms."

The magazine said its spot check was conducted in Chicago; San Francisco; Philadelphia; Boston; Louisville, Ky.; St. Petersburg, Fla.; and Dayton, Ohio., on packages of ground beef purchased at two stores of each of the four or five largest local grocery chains on Oct. 3 and Oct. 11.

The meat was analyzed at local testing laboratories, according to the magazine.

It said E. coli bacteria, which it described as an indicator of potentially disease-causing germs from the intestine, were detected in samples from six of the seven cities. A check for E. coli bacteria was not made in Boston, the report said.

Frank Pollack, the magazine editor, said E. coli can produce sourness and meat spoilage and along with other bacteria can cause food poisoning. More important, he said, its presence might indicate other more serious disease-forming bacteria.

Whether bacteria causes sickness depends on the type and quantity, the thoroughness of cooking and the health of the person eating it, he said. A highly contaminated hamburger could be safe if cooked well done, but Americans "tend to eat rare hamburger," Pollack said.

"E. coli contamination may come from several sources. It may come from backed-up sewer lines seeping into water used for cleaning grinders or processing areas, from meat handlers who fail to wash their hands after using the toilet or from the intestines of slaughtered animals," the magazine said.

The magazine said in 44 per cent of the samples collected from Dayton, Louisville, Philadelphia and St. Petersburg the E. coli count exceeded 50 organisms per gram, the maximum level set by a new Oregon state law, a standard used by the magazine.

Attorney says milk co-op disguised funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — A fired lawyer for the nation's largest dairy cooperative swears the group disguised illegal corporate "campaign contributions" as legal fees.

The allegation is being investigated by the Senate Watergate committee, the Watergate prosecution force, the FBI, the Internal Revenue Service and the General Accounting Office.

Investigators are seeking to find how much of a reported $384,000 legal bill went into the alleged contributions, who got them, and whether any of the money was used for any other purpose.

The ousted lawyer, Joseph A. Rose Jr., 35, was fired from his job as the San Antonio-based Associated Milk Producers in September after he told part of his story to FBI agents.

A spokesman for the group said Rose was fired for "failure to carry out his duties."

Rose testified in a lawsuit that the milk producers funneled political money through an Oklahoma City lawyer, Stuart Russell, and that Russell converted it to checks and cash and gave it to the milkmen's chief political staffer, Robert Lilly.

Court filings show Russell received $384,000 in a 10-month period ending April 30, 1972. At least part of the money apparently went for legitimate legal costs, since Russell performed legal services for the milk group during that period.

Rose said Russell acknowledged passing money to Lilly for "political contributions," and became nervous about the arrangement when IRS agents traced some of the money to Lilly. Federal law prohibits use of corporation money for political donations.

Rose said Lilly indicated he knew who got the money, and that he left open the possibility it had gone for something other than campaign funds

Rose said he felt it was his obligation as a lawyer to get the money back, but that Lilly told him, "It can't be recouped because it didn't go to something like the Committee to Re-elect the President. It went direct."

Rose was asked, "By direct, you mean like hundred dollar bills in a brown bag, is that the way you understood it?"

"That is my conclusion," Rose said.

He testified in a tangled lawsuit in Kansas City, Mo., on Oct. 23, and a transcript of his statement became available in Washington Wednesday.

Russell and Lilly couldn't be reached for comment. A spokesman for the milk producers declined to comment on Rose's allegations.

The milk producers have been at the center of another political controversy. Public-interest groups have alleged in court that the milkmen bought favors from the Nixon administration in return for campaign donations.

Ghosties, goblins

Tuesday morning something strange happened at the Appleton Public Library. Librarians quaked in fear. A hush fell as ghosties and goulies made their way to the children's department and plunked themselves on the floor. It was a natural turn of events, however, as the super-natural gathering had come for the Pre-School Story Hour.

Goblins haunt city's library

Raggedy Ann

At left, Cindy Redlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Redlin, concentrates during the pre-Halloween happening. Books read during Tuesday morning's session were selected by AAUW readers in consultation with Mrs. Carole DeJandrin, head librarian. Story hours are at 9:15 and 10 a.m. Tuesday, and 9:15 a.m., Wednesday. Beginning in January, an additional session is planned for 10 a.m. Wednesday

Clowning around

Robbie Fentz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fentz, was part of the unearthly crowd of four and five-year olds who had come to hear AAUW readers interpret "Scat, the Witch's Cat," "Woggle of Witches," "Once a Year Witch," and "Georgie's Halloween." (Post-Crescent photos by Edward J. Deschler Jr.)

In the spell

Caught up in the heady Halloween spell were Kristen Sapp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sapp, and Julie Salm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Salm. AAUW readers include Mrs. Charles Holtz, Mrs. James Phillips, Mrs. Allan Glinski, Mrs. Paul Holmquist, Mrs. Judson Fowler and Mrs. James Winchell. Co-chairing several of the sessions are Mrs. James Blose and Mrs. James Dow.

Lady Bird intrigued by budget decorating

BY VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

"Young people need to know about good budget decorating," observed Lady Bird Johnson as she discussed her first hours as chairman of the 1974 Burlington House Awards Committee Budget decorating was prominently featured in the 24 categories that she and her panel of judges were meeting to consider in the sixth annual event to cite excellence in interior design.

Because of distractions, Mrs. Johnson had persued only seven categories — photographs and texts on big boards — although she had started before 9, she said.

"I really can't wait to get back," she commented at lunch. "I'm particularly excited about budget entries because so many young people need that kind of information. I know how hard it is for the four young people working for me to make a dollar stretch to furnish a home well. Not to mention how it affects my own children..."

In answer to her question, "How can this wonderful grab bag of ideas get to Mrs. John Doe on Main Street in a little town?", she was happy to learn that the information would be provided to adult extension groups and others along with colored slides.

Entries are submitted by newspapers, magazines, individuals They included a variety of homes — 19th-century remodeled ... condominium .. vacation ... eclectic ... basement .. men's . unusual (lofts, laundry, stable, houseboat and other conversions) ... do-it-yourself. Many ideas are unique, often accomplished with something as simple as artistry with paint. One red, white and blue kitchen was blue on one side, red on the other with the paints running up the door to a graphic pattern on the ceiling.

"Kitchens and utility rooms offer a great potential because women spend so much time in them," Mrs. Johnson commented, "and the do-it-yourself entries look exciting. It is so satisfying when you can stand back and look proudly at something you've done."

There were the usual number of things turned into other things.

"I've thought up some ideas for my guest house that I'm going to pass on to our maintenance man. I've found two old console televisions that will make a lovely table with their legs cut off and with felt put over the top. Do-it-yourself helps keep old things useful.

"I am embattled against waste. Everything should be reused. We should even go to people who package things and try to convey that we don't need all that fancy packaging — pretty bottles and the like..."

She is a home (two) person, she says. The "ranch house" has been given to the National Park Service, but she intends to use her life rights.

"It is more fair to call it a farm house. It is a big, old comfortable two-story house with an outside staircase built in the style of German builders who had settled in that area Lyndon had known the house since he was 4. We spent many good times there even before he bought it from his aunt in 1952."

It is cheerfully decorated in pinks and yellows and has a beautiful garden of wildflowers, but it is crowded with memories and Luci and her family visit her there weekends. She still spends four or five days a week in the apartment with terrace above their television station in Austin. She enjoys that arrangement, "but Lyndon always said it meant spending a lot of time in the middle of a big road."

Among the 17 new members of her 24-member board of governors on the Burlington panel were some well-known names, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mrs James Buckley, Mrs. Claiborne Pell, Mrs. Henry S Lodge

One youthful newcomer, Mrs. King-lit Ching of Honolulu, was also intrigued with the budget houses and "had gotten some good ideas from them," she remarked. "Always before, such things have looked stereotyped, but these inexpensive furnishings are beautiful..."

She and young Mrs. Robert (Suzy) Dehlendorf II, who has been a judge for several years, were particularly intrigued with the furnishings, wicker and the like, that might be bought in chain stores and painted. Suzy found the budget contemporary house "with its dime store chairs" in very good taste. In fact she has been an admirer of the English Country Tudor house — she had just moved from one in Atherton, Calif., to one in Winnetka, Ill. — but now she's been impressed with the contemporary one "It could simplify everything You could furnish in a nice fresh way with a lot of color for warmth..."

Always one to single out improvisation, Mrs William McCormick Blair Jr , of Washington D.C was intrigued with an apartment shared by two girls who had made handsome slipcovers out of cheetah-printed red and green racing stripe bedspreads. They used them with red accents and tatami matting on the floor.

Kayle Skinner of Seattle, another experienced member of the panel, pointedto a new category — Grand Houses — and were they ever. As she said of the homes which included Mrs. Woolworth Donohue's, "When they get this grand it is hard to tell them apart — they all have elegance in common."

A "garden category" was added in honor of Mrs. Johnson and entries included designs on terraces, porches, decks, windows. An exciting touch and smell garden was entered by the Lighthouse for the Blind.

One can think about gardens in terms of lasting gifts, observed Mrs. Johnson.

"For example, giving a tree for a gift is a wonderful idea. An architect gave me a big red oak tree and I always can point it out to him because it is always there."

Experts call this play an 'obligatory finesse'

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Experts give the name "obligatory finesse" to a certain play. As a matter of fact, this play isn't really a finesse at all, but it certainly is obligatory.

Opening lead — ♠ Q

West opened the queen of spades, and South's heart sank. It was clear that he was going to lose two spade tricks, and there was a good chance that he would also lose two trump tricks. The defenders took their two spades and then shifted to clubs. It was now up to South to limit the trump loss to one trick.

South had only one hope: that one of the opponents held the ace and only one other trump. He therefore played on the assumption that this holding actually existed.

There was no problem about who held the ace of hearts. West had overcalled with a topless spade suit and needed the side strength of the ace of hearts for his bid. Moreover, East had passed throughout with the ace of spades; he would have raised spades if he also had the ace of hearts.

South began the trumps by leading low from his own hand through West's ace. West naturally played low, and dummy's queen won.

Now declarer returned a low trump from dummy and played low from his own hand. This play — ducking in both hands — is the obligatory finesse. It does no good to lose the king to the ace, since then the jack or ten is bound to take a second trump trick. The only hope is that the ace will have to appear on the trick, even though South has played low.

The play worked in this case. West had to take his ace of trumps, and South could later draw the last trump with his king. The rest was easy.

Key tapes 'don't exist'

oportions," said James L. Buckley, n.-R-N.Y.

Republican Mark O. Hatfield of egon said the revelation that "the ry tapes that have been fought over the brink of a constitutional nfrontation" don't exist "dramatally escalates the problem of this ministration's credibility."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., lled it incredible and said, "Surely, e President and his counsel must ve known the situation on these tapes during all of the discussions with the court and with the Senate committee. The public is fed up with this sort of business."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said, "I find it astonishing."

Archibald Cox, who was ousted as special prosecutor for rejecting a presidential compromise offer concerning the tapes, said he believes the White House representatives he dealt with knew nothing about the condition of the tapes.

He said he learned of problems with the April 15 recording shortly before he was fired.

In a court memorandum in support of his subpoena for the recordings, Cox had said the tape of June 20 Mitchell conversation "will either tend to confirm Mitchell's version" that he told the President only five men were involved "or show a more candid report."

If Dean's version of the April 15 meeting was true and accurate, the memorandum had said "this testimony would indicate an important dimension to the cover-up conspiracy. If false and misleading, a perjurious injustice has been done for which the grand jury can return an indictment."

Richard Ben Veniste, a prosecution force lawyer who questioned Zumwalt, said he was attempting "to explore all the circumstances surrounding the fact that these tapes according to the White It also was the first chance for a prosecution force lawyer to get detailed testimony of the taping operation. Zumwalt said under questioning that the initial tapes were made Feb. 16, 1971, and that the equipment was dismantled July 18 this year.

Armstrong making final appearance in court

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Karleton. Armstrong was to make his final scheduled appearance in state court today, facing up to 95 years in prison for the 1970 bombing of the University of Wisconsin's Sterling Hall and related incidents.

It was more likely that Armstrong, 27, would be sentenced to 25 years or less, making him eligible for parole in a maximum of five years.

Pronouncing sentence will be Dane County Circuit Court Judge William Sachtjen. He spent last weekend weighing the case against the former UW student after hearing two weeks of defense testimony on why Armstrong committed the bombing.

Armstrong pleaded guilty to second degree murder for the death of a researcher working in the building, four counts of arson and count of illegally transporting explosives.

He faced a maximum of 50 years on the arson charges, 25 years for murder and 10 years for the explosives count.

The State of Wisconsin and Dane County recommended a total sentence of 25 years.

Armstrong still faces sentencing on federal charges related to the bombing.

In the weeks prior to the sentencing, Sachtjen was silent on whether or not he had been affected by witnesses such as Pentagon Papers co-defendant Anthony Russo and antiwar activist Philip Berrigan, or by a defense highlighted by Chicago 7 attorney William Kunstler of New York.

He described the pre-sentence testimony as "interesting." Beyond that Sachtjen, a mild-mannered man who served as an Army officer during World War II, said nothing.

Sheboygan puzzle

Masons, constructing a widened street in Sheboygan, built one wheelchair ramp around a utility pole and another with a fire hydrant in the way. The goof-up occurred when a city inspector failed to notice that the pole hadn't been moved far enough out of the way. Eventually, power lines will be buried. Until then, wheelchairs will be detoured. (AP wirephoto)

repeated the order, and Kleindienst then "sent word to the President that, if he persisted in that direction, I would be compelled to submit my resignation."

April 19 was the deadline for the government to notify the Supreme Court of its intention to appeal a lower court decision against the government's challenge of ITT's acquisition of the Grinnell Corp.

Kleindienst said he then asked the high court for a 30-day extension "to enable the President to consider my position" and Nixon subsequently "changed his mind."

At the time that Nixon ordered Kleindienst not to appeal the Grinnell decision, the Justice Department had filed suits challenging ITT's acquisition of the Canteen Corp. and the Hartford Fire Insurance Co. However, there had been no court decision in either of those cases.

The Justice Department filed the appeal, but then negotiated an out-of-court settlement requiring ITT to divest itself of three subsidiaries and part of a fourth but allowing it to keep the profitable Hartford Fire Insurance Co.

The controversy has focused on allegations that the deal was struck in return for ITT's pledge of political funds.

eading heart expert, Dr. White, dead at 87

OSTON (AP) — Paul Dudley White determined as a youth not to me a doctor. But he changed his d and began a 60-year career that ld make him one of the world's ing heart experts.

hite, who died Wednesday at 87 of complications related to a recent stroke, was the mentor and friend of heart specialists the world over.

A pioneer in heart research, he was a teacher, worldwide lecturer and a leading exponent of moderation in lifestyle and exercise as means of preventing or delaying heart and blood vessel problems.

When President Dwight D. Eisenhower suffered a heart attack in

White

1955, White was named Eisenhower's chief medical consultant.

His treatment of Eisenhower brought the thin, grey-mustached doctor to the attention of the public. He used this public recognition as a platform from which to speak about preventive heart care and the need for public financing of medical research.

White served as president of the American Medical Association and was a founder and president of the American Heart Association and the International Association of Cardiology.

"In the annals of medicine, Dr. Paul Dudley White will be remembered as a man who not only revolutionized the treatment of heart disease, but also educated millions of Americans on ways to prevent heart attacks," President Nixon said Wednesday night.

"His services in this field were great, and, taken by themselves, would justify his place in history."

White was born June 6, 1886, in Boston. He was graduated from Harvard Medical School in 1911. He focused on cardiology when many considered that budding field too narrow for an entire career.

His research made him one of the first to recognize that moderation in diet and exercise were beneficial for good heart care. He also noted that even after a heart attack, a moderate regimen in exercise and diet could help prevent a short or invalid life.

The soft-spoken doctor also was a family man, a skier, a mountain climber, bicyclist, author and world traveler on medical missions.

He maintained his hectic pace to almost the end of his life. In 1971 he became one of the first American physicians to visit mainland China following the thaw in U.S.-Chinese relations.

Women's insurance needs differ

NEW YORK — Maybe it's because of the Women's Movement, maybe it's the result of spiraling prices, but whatever the reason, more women than ever before are working outside the home.

Figures from the last national census in 1970 indicate that 40 out of every 100 wives are in the labor force as compared with 25 out of 100 wives who were employed in 1950.

Women's earnings, points out a major insurance company, constitute an increasingly important part of total family income and should be a major consideration in planning a family's financial program. For, whether a woman works for personal fulfillment or from economic necessity, chances are that her salary has become an expected source of family income that would be sorely missed should it be cut off by illness or death. Just as her husband depends on insurance to guarantee against the financial void that would be created by the loss of his salary, so should she.

But, the company reminds, life insurance is not just financial protection in case of death. More than half the life insurance payments made go to living policyholders.

Insurance can mean college educations for the children and comfortable retirement years for the parents.

For the woman who heads a household, insurance is critical. As the breadwinner, her insurance needs are as apparent as those of any man with a family to support. By 1980 statistics indicate that a woman will head one out of every four American families and insurance can be a key element in providing for her children's financial security as well as her own retirement.

Insurance may be a wise purchase, too, for the mother of young children who does not hold an outside job. Even though she may not consider that she is supplementing the family finances, the company suggests, for instance, that the cost of hiring outside help to perform many tasks would be prohibitive should the family find itself in the tragic position of being without her. Life insurance equivalent to a year or two of her husband's salary would help to ease financial stress during a difficult and sorrowful period.

What kind of policy to buy? There's no pat answer. Insurance purchases should be based on specific needs. The important thing is to discuss an insurance program with a qualified insurance sales representative.

Ann Landers

Sex quiz for teen-agers

Dear Ann Landers: It's been a long time since you first printed that "Know Thyself Sex Test For Teen-agers." Anyone who digs cats between 13 and 19 knows that mossy old test of 1966 needs updating.

A committee of four—two males and two females, from 15 to 17—have revised the original test and here it is. Please warn the old geezers who are subject to heart failure to skip Ann Landers today.

Instructions For Scoring: For each yes answer, give yourself the number of points at the end of that line. Add up the score and compare it to the Scoring Guide:

Ever been out with a member of the opposite sex? 2
Ever been kissed? 2
Ever been French kissed? 2
Ever been kissed while in a reclining position? 2
Ever been parked for more than one hour? ... 2
Ever said "I love you"? 3
Ever said "I love you" to more than one person in the same week? 4
Ever made a member of the opposite sex cry? 3
Has a member of the opposite sex ever made you cry? 3
Ever removed some of your clothes while making out? 5
Ever removed your clothes while making out? 8
Ever gone all the way? 8
Ever had an abortion or been responsible for one? 10
Ever been picked up by someone you never saw before? 7
Ever had sex with someone you just met that night? 10
Ever lie to your folks about where you've been or who with? 7
Do you smoke cigarets? 1
Do you drink? 2
Taken downers or uppers or both? 6
Smoked pot? 3
Ever tripped on LSD? 8
Ever done cocaine or shot up speed or horse? 10
Ever have sex without any precaution against pregnancy? 8
Ever wake up and not remember where you've been or what you've done? 8
Ever been busted for possession of pot? 6
Ever been busted for possession of hard chemicals? ..... 10.

Scoring Guide:

7 or under—Innocent And Unaware
8 to 14—Pure As The Driven Snow
15 to 24—Normal And Decent
25 to 30—Passionate And Heading For Trouble.
30 to 45—In Trouble And Getting Messed Up
45 to 55—Messed Up But Salvageable, Maybe
55 to 65—Condemned. Either you are a damn fool or you have freaked out completely and are no longer responsible for what you are doing.

Yours truly,
Normal And Decent

Dear Normal And Decent: According to my figures you don't rate that signature if you have over 17 points. I hope that's where you are.

League of Women Voters

Action priorities to be unit topic

Carol Toussaint, immediate past president of the Wisconsin League of Women Voters, will address a general meeting of the Appleton League at 8 p.m. Nov. 14 at Outagamie County Bank. Her topic will be court reform: what has happened since League's two-year study on courts reached consensus and what action is foreseen.

Unit meetings will deal with action priorities. The national board has set solid waste, trade, renewal of Elementary and Secondary Education Act and congressional reform as high action priorities. On the state level, the board set court reform, county assessor, equal rights on the basis of sex and housing as high priorities and locally, county assessor, city-county or county health department and administration of justice —court reform.

Jean Radford, 2218 Clover Lane, will be hostess for the 8 p.m. Nov. 26 gathering; Barbara Hussin for the 9 a.m. Nov. 28 meeting at Presbyterian Church; Donna Olson, 1031 S. Mathias St. for the 8 p.m. Nov. 28 meeting and Sharon Wood for the 1:15 p.m. Nov. 29 meeting at Our Redeemer Lutheran Church.

Also on this month's agenda is an every member program workshop Tuesday in Madison and a discussion leaders' workshop at 8 p.m. Thursday at the home of Cathy Boardman, 838 W. Prospect Ave.

There will be a board meeting at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 19 at the home of Barbara Hoffman.

Teacher activism urged

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent staff writer

MILWAUKEE — Wisconsin has done much in the past two years to strengthen its public education, and now the taxpayer deserves a full accounting by educators, Gov. Patrick J. Lucey told conventioning teachers today.

Lucey's warning that the elementary and secondary public schools probably would come under the same scrutiny that the University of Wisconsin system recently experienced was sandwiched between strong calls by education leaders for continued political activism at state and national levels.

Catharine Barrett, former National Education Association president from New York State, and Lauri Wynn, Wisconsin Education Association president, urged teachers to continue to stand up for their rights and the rights of children and education.

The governor told teachers that it was time for educators to re-examine their local school systems to ensure that the education dollar is being used as efficiently as possible.

"The period in which any educational expense can be justified is long past," Lucey said. "Our schools are no longer a growth industry, and the bottom of the public pocketbook has nearly been reached."

He said he wasn't apologizing for educational expenditures, but suggested that perhaps programs should be combined or eliminated in the interests of financial efficiency. He suggested this would ensure continued public support for education and educators.

The governor said he was especially proud of the contribution the state has made in the past two years toward strengthening local education. He said the recommendations his Task Force on Educational Financing had brought forth resulted in increases and equalization of educational financial support for Wisconsin communities, and these are reflected in the current state budget.

Lucey announced the task force formation at the WEA convention two years ago.

Lucey and five state senators and representatives were presented awards by Wynn for their recent contributions to education in Wisconsin.

Speaking before Lucey, Barrett urged teachers to continue to flex their political muscles for education. She specifically urged them to contact congressmen and senators for support of the $6.1 billion education appropriations bill, which she expects President Nixon to veto.

She reminded teachers that the federal government has been far behind state and local government in financially supporting education.

Barrett also pointed out that the National Education Association (NEA) has 1.4 million members and members in every electoral district in the United States — something no other group can boast of.

"This kind of representation spells political power at its utmost," she said.

Wynn talked about the vital importance of teachers because of their influence on children, and she told the conventioning teachers that the public must be made to realize that it is in the interest of better education that teachers also be concerned about their personal welfare. She said that she has five children and that this has made her teacher role a much more personal and important one for her.

Morris Andrews, executive secretary of the WEA council, Madison, told teachers that they should be proud to be identified as a special interest group.

Noting that the teacher organization was the only one lobbying for education in the last legislative session, he said, "We are making a significant difference for the caliber of education in the state and in this nation."

Night on the town

Halloween was a night for big and small, friendly and scary animals to roam the streets in search for sweets. Some, like Patty the cat, above, were too small to reach the doorbells and needed the assistance of her mother, Mrs. Timothy Frieders. Others, like Colleen and Chris Nickles, right, came with big bags in hopes of a plentiful evening. (Post-Crescent photos by Robert V. Baeten)

Appleton cautious about joint health department

The Appleton Board of Health wants to continue discussions with Outagamie County on creation of a city-county health department, but it fell short Wednesday of making any commitments.

The board heard state Division of Health staffer R. J. Siesen explain how such a unit —which would guarantee the city voting power on the governing body —would be established and operated. It also reviewed a report from city Health Officer Peter LeMere detailing the advantages of countywide health administration.

But anxiety over what a merger would mean for Appleton residents in the future and whether the county would commit itself to a program equal to what the city now has, prompted caution among board members.

"We need to have some evidence that there is a concern about the level of services" from the county board, Mayor James Sutherland said.

The board will meet with members of the county health committee Friday to explain its position. A resolution has been prepared for the November county board meeting calling for the establishment of a county health department, something the Appleton unit does not favor because complete control of the program would be left in county hands.

The city's proposed health department budget for 1974 shows a cost of $90,500, compared with a proposed county program offering fewer services and costing $51,799.

Even with a city-county health department, county appointees would outnumber city appointees on the board, four-to-three. Sutherland said this, and the county board's option to fund services at the level it chooses give the county "veto power" over city efforts to maintain or improve its health services.

Costs prepared by LeMere and Finance Director Reynold Running showed that Appleton residents now pay $103,426 for health services, including their nearly 44 per cent share of the county program. Under a first-year program costing $232,661, which LeMere called "a little above minimal," city residents would pay $100,044.

An expanded second-year program costing $280,000 would cost Appleton taxpayers $210,400.

Park funding responsibility shifts around

The responsibility for deciding where the funds should come from for the next development phase at Plamann Park has been shipped back to the finance committee by the property, building and maintenance committee.

The finance committee, during its review of the 1974 proposed county budget, noted that there were no funds requested in the budget by the properties committee for the park and decided that since money wasn't requested they would not take the initiative.

Supv. Nick Karras, properties committee chairman, Wednesday night told other committee members that "we shouldn't have to submit a funding request each year. It should automatically go into the budget."

Shredder ruling likely by Dec. 1

Outagamie County Judge Urban Van Susteren indicated this morning he would probably have a decision by Dec. 1 in the suit brought by Ald. William Errington against Appleton to void the sale of a portion of the Northeast Industrial Park to the county as the site for a solid waste shredder.

Van Susteren gave the attorneys approximately five days to file briefs and indicated he would allow about another five days for answers to the briefs.

Roger Clark, attorney for Errington, filed a list of past court decisions with Van Susteren and said that would constitute his brief. Appleton City Atty. David Geenen said he would file a formal brief.

This is the second suit filed by Errington in an attempt to block the sale of the land. His first suit was dismissed on grounds that it was premature because the land had not yet been sold. He filed the new suit Aug. 31.

Errington, in his complaint, charged that the sale violates the city's Planned Industrial Park zoning restrictions, the deed restrictions applying in the park and state statutes under which the park was originally acquired by the city.

After the arguments were presented in court, Van Susteren said there did not appear to be any "substantial conflict over the facts" and that it was now a matter interpretation of law.

$179,760 added to city tax levy

The Appleton Finance Committee added $179,760 to the city's tax levy Wednesday night, increasing the proposed tax rate about 32 cents per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

The increase puts the currently proposed rate close to the 1973 tax rate. When the current proposed rate of about $27.54 is converted to a rate comparable to last year's, when assessments were not made at 100 per cent of full value, it comes to about $74.47 for Outagamie County residents.

Delete funds for widening of E. College

BY FRANK CHURCH
Post-Crescent staff writer

The goals of a mayor in seeking to put only top priority projects in his 1974 executive budget and aldermen anxious to answer the needs of their wards clashed Wednesday in debate over proposed street projects for the city next year.

The results: A widening and temporary resurfacing of E. College Avenue was erased from the budget, a majority of the finance committee hoping to see long-range plans for the area before doing anything there, and six street projects left out of the executive budget were put back in by aldermen who saw priorities differently than Mayor James Sutherland.

The action on the College Avenue project, which called for a temporary widening of the pavement between Drew and Rankin streets with an asphalt surface, does not end debate on the subject. Alternative proposals for the street project will be discussed at a street and sanitation committee meeting Monday, which could lead to another proposal's coming back for insertion into the budget before it is adopted.

The addition of the six streets — five pegged for concrete paving and one destined for concrete reconstruction — answered the complaints of aldermen from the ward who said the projects were absolutely necessary in 1974.

Ald. Edward Maloney (9th), whose ward includes four of the five streets placed back in the budget for new construction, said residents there wanted the streets and were willing to pay the assessments for them.

While 15 residents of Clover Lane and Berry Drive looked on, Maloney implored the finance committee to put back into the budget projects that had already gone through a public hearing and received City Council approval.

Why make the willing residents wait and pay a higher cost for paving the streets in the years ahead? Maloney asked. "They're willing to pay their 60 per cent now."

The mayor admitted Maloney had a "very defensible position," but he pointed out that the four streets in Maloney's ward were cut from the budget because other projects in the city rated higher priority. All of the $6,290,270 worth of public improvement projects in the original public works budget deserved to be done, the mayor said, but only $3,486,972 could be placed in his budget this year.

Public Works Director Robert Miller also admitted the streets deserved paving, but noted that on the scale of priorities, streets on the north side and elsewhere rated higher.

Added to Maloney's four streets — Clover Lane, Berry Drive, Harding Drive and Hansen Drive — Ald. Glenn Thompson (13th) argued for reinserting Matthias Street, another concrete paving project approved after a public hearing last month. One hundred per cent of the residents of the street want it, he said.

"The rest of the city has to continue to grow," argued Maloney, noting that the projects would add very little to the $2,103,029 bond issue already proposed in the budget for a variety of improvements.

Before the additions, the concrete paving budget carried $185,375 in direct city costs. The rest was covered by special assessments. The addition of the five other streets, which were submitted in Miller's original budget request but knocked out by Sutherlands added $177,310 to that.

The vote saw Aldermen Donald Day (19th), Rayburn Kaufman (4th) and Ralph West (20th) support placing the streets back in the budget. Ald. Beverly Wieckert (11th) voted "no" because she felt all priorities in the permanent improvements budget should be weighed (the concrete paving projects were the first taken up) before a vote was taken.

In the case of the concrete reconstruction of Sixth Street, between Memorial Drive and Prospect Avenue, and the asphalt widening of E. College Avenue, finance committee members did a little "horsetrading," as Thompson called it. They placed the Sixth Street project, carrying a city-cost price tag of $54,750, back in the budget while eliminating the E. College project, which carried a $56,700 cost.

"While Ald. Thomas Kamps (8th) argued that Sixth Street was in worse condition than College, several aldermen and committee members said the city shouldn't commit itself to a temporary widening and repaving of College before it knows what the city plannimg consultants have in mind for it.

When asked if the College project could be put off another year, Miller said "that depends on what your tolerance is" but added that "you might kill somebody down there" if something isn't done to relieve the crowded traffic and pedestrian conditions around Lawrence University.

Several aldermen, including Maloney, Walter Kalata (2nd) and Thompson, said long-range decisions should be made before short-term projects are undertaken. To widen E. College with asphalt now could be a waste of money, if the project doesn't fit long-range plans, or could settle the city on a widening of College before the long-range alternatives are even considered.

Among the alternatives, which will be considered at the street and sanitation session Monday, are widening College, by-passing the street along a northern route like Franklin Street or constructing a boulevard like that suggested by Lawrence University.

Miller and Sutherland both pointed to the interim recommendation expected from city plan consultants by Jan. 1, which could be substituted for the asphalt widening project. Sutherland also said a final recommendation from Harland Bartholomew and Associates will not be ready until early 1975, not in time for budget preparation next year.

The Sixth Street reconstruction project was reinserted with a unanimous vote.

Claims total $2.5 million in park injury

Claims totaling $2.5 million have been filed against Outagamie County as the result of a swimming accident at the Plamann Park lake last summer which left an Appleton youth paralyzed from the neck down.

The claims were filed by 17-year-old Timothy Brinkman, who was injured in the accident, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Brinkman, 2109 N. Erb St., Appleton.

Timothy Brinkman is seeking $2 million in damages and his paremts are asking $250,000 each.

Brinkman, who would have been a senior at Appleton High School-West this year, was injured July 12. He was found floating face down in the water by Michaeld VanSelow, a lifeguard.

After spending nearly two months at St. Elizabeth Hospital, he was transferred to Sacred Heart Hospital in Milwaukee for rehabilitation. He is still at Sacred Heart.

The claim by Timothy Brinkman charges that there were carelessness, recklessness and negligence on the part of the county "in failing to construct a swimming area safe for the users" and that the county "failed to provide adequate supervision and failed to provide markings as to the depth of the water or to provide any other warnings as to hazards."

He also complained that he suffered permanent injuries that "will cause him pain and suffering in the future and will impair his ability to earn a living; that he sustaimed severe shock to his nervous system and suffered great pain and mental anguish."

In the companion claim filed by Timothy's father, Orville Brinkman cited the resulting cost of medical aid and charged he was "deprived of his son's aid, comfort, society and companionship." The claim filed by his mother also claimed loss of her son's "aid, comfort, society and companionship."

County Corp. Counsel William Schuh said the claims will be turned over to the county's insurance carrier for investigation.

Teacher contract plans presented

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent staff writer

Teachers presented requests to enhance teachers' rights and working conditions, and the Appleton Board of Education proposed strengthening the board's management powers, as negotiators for the two sides met Wednesday afternoon in the opening session of talks on the calendar 1974 teacher master contract.

Dr. Kenneth Johnston, director of administrative services, said he intends to present next week an additional proposal revising the teachers' salary structure by creating a version of a merit pay system.

Neither side responded immediately to the other's proposals in the short session, but both agreed to meet in full-fledged negotiation sessions Tuesday and Wednesday.

The teachers' proposal calls for installing a "fair share" program in the system, which, in effect, is the closed union shop. Dennis Herrling, Appleton Education Association legal counsel, said the association felt that those benefiting from negotiations should be required to pay dues, even though they shouldn't be forced to join the organization.

He said private enterprise has had a fair share system for years, and many public schools in Wisconsin have it.

The teachers also are seeking to have seniority be the No. 1 consideration in evaluating teachers for staff reductions. They want a reduction to come only when enrollments drop substantially.

Also, they sought to strengthen the teachers' position against nonrenewal by putting it in the same category as suspension and dismissal, and requiring "good cause" for action. The requests, in effect, seek a form of tenure for teachers.

Among the working conditions teachers are seeking to delimate is class sizes. They want maximums of 25 students per class for kindergarten and primary units, and 30 for junior and senior high. These are State Department of Public Instruction recommendations, said Herrling, noting that Appleton teachers are concerned about educational quality being damaged with larger classes.

The working conditions proposals, in part, reflect existing conditions, but would put it in writing in the contract. Also, they seek to clarify the role of teachers' aides, claiming that aides should handle only noninstructional duties as designated by teachers. Teachers are concerned about aides' supplanting them in certain situations.

The AEA proposal also calls for a minimum of a 5.5 per cent base salary hike from $7,700 to $8,123.50 for a beginning teacher with a four-year degree, plus higher pay for extra work and more equal pay (for women in particular) in high school athletics positions.

The board proposal on merit pay would set up categories — such as beginning teacher, instructor, leader, and award teacher — and it also would reward performance, according to Johnston. The public wants it, and its a justifiable way of paying professionals, he added.

Teachers are expected to oppose this plan because it may put them at the mercy of administrators for pay hikes.

The board proposal also seeks to strengthen or clarify the board's statutory responsibilities by eliminating possible teacher intervention by arbi-

Kimberly man's death blamed on driver error

Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H. Kemps ruled Wednesday that the Sept. 16 traffic death of a Kimberly man was due to the other driver's failure to yield right-of-way at the intersection of State 55 and Maloney Road north of Kaukauna.

Kemps returned his verdict at the completion of the inquest into the death of Kenneth Bosmans, 19. The district attorney's office, which assisted in the inquest, has the option of bringing the traffic charge against David Mielke, 18, 400 Whitney St., Kaukauna.

Mielke, whose car was pulling into the intersection in the westbound lane of Maloney when it was struck by motorcycles driven by Bosmans and Mark Coffey, was scheduled to testify Wednesday, but on the advice of his attorney, Public Defender John Leonard, Mielke declined to answer any questions.

Kemps ruled that Bosmans died at the scene from a severed brain stem. Coffey, 19, of Kaukauna, and Kathy Zehren, 17, of Neenah, who was riding on Bosmans' cycle, were injured, as was Mielke.

Witnesses testified that the two cycles struck the driver's side of Mielke's auto, and that neither driver applied his brakes or swerved to avoid the collision. The accident took place in clear weather about 7:10 p.m.

Several witnesses testified that Bosmans, Coffey and Miss Zehren were among a group of 13 or more cyclists driving north to a tavern at Freedom. The group had been drinking at several other taverns between High Cliff and Little Chute prior to the accident.

Former students say thanks to Mr. Warner

BY DAVE WEITZ
Post-Crescent staff writer

A lot of people said thanks Wednesday to soft-spoken Leonard Warner, who gently has changed their lives and agriculture in the Fox Valley. He was "Mr. Warner," to some, "Len," to most and "Pop," to a few.

Some were bosses, some businessmen and most farmers. In a way all of them had been students in Len's classroom — whether on the farm or over a cup of coffee. For 43 years Len's been teaching agriculture.

He graduated in 1931 from college at River Falls and for the next three years taught at Roberts, Wis.

In 1934 he came to Marion and started an agriculture class. Next, in 1937, he moved to New London and set up an agriculture class and in 1947 Len started the first veterans training program at Appleton Technical Institute. There were 22 farmers in that first class. Now there are 1,350 enrolled in the expanded Fox Valley Technical Institute.

And some of the Institute students, such as Marvin Hintz, Marion, started out with Len as an agriculture teacher in high school.

Marvin was in a group of 66 students that Len loaded on a cattle truck back then for a week-long camping trip to tour farm businesses and stockyards at St. Paul and Minneapolis.

George Roberts, Denmark, who now is a vocational agriculture instructor started out in farm classes in 1931 with a greenhorn teacher — Len.

"After my sophomore year in high school I wanted to go up and do what Mr. Warner did... teach agriculture'" Roberts told the crowd of more than 300.

So like Len he went to River Falls college and eventually came to New London to practice teach with Len as supervisor. Now Roberts is teaching high school students at Denmark — just as Len once did in Roberts.

Allen Bohl, route 1, Hortonville, calls Len Pop. "My father died when I was young and I didn't have anywhere to turn," he explained. Allen turned to Len and Len helped.

So for years when a major decision was to be made on the Bohl farm Len's phone would ring. "He always had the answer or he knew where to find them."

For William Sirek, director of Fox Valley Technical Institute, Len was a coordinator of farm programs that fought for teachers and offices and more programs until today the institute has seven full-time instructors with programs reaching into parts of eight counties.

For Eugene Lehrmann, director of the state board of vocational technical and adult education, Len is a teacher. In the 43 years he's worked, said Lehrmann, Len has lived the kind of life that national educators now are trying to develop.

Lehrmann called him "a person that exemplifies what vocational education ought to be about."

Bill DiVall, Winneconne, one of the FVTI farm instructors, put it simply. There is no vocational agriculture instructor in Wisconsin "that is using an idea, a form, a philosophy that did not come from Len Warner."

It's been a big change from starting out at Marion where part of his job was to build tables and benches for students during the day and go out to recruit farm students to the city school in evenings.

He was a recruiter at New London, too. School officials there bluntly informed Len that they wanted to get country students in the school and the tuition that would come with them. So Len drove to within six miles of Appleton on a door-to-door selling campaign. Hortonville didn't have an agriculture program and Len's recruitment drive drew enough farm boys from the area so the present New London school district forms a semi-circle around the Hortonville school district.

Finally, after the praise and speeches were over Wednesday, Len stood up and looked at that class of 300.

He said thanks. Then the soft-spoken man refused to take credit for the job. Instead he thanked the "seven best" farm instructors in the state that are in the FVTI. Most of all he thanked his wife, Ila. It was she, he said, who had answered up to 50 calls per day on the home telephone and didn't complain when he was gone from the family to teach.

The family was there, too: a brother David, of Clear Lake, a sister and brother-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Ruben Carlson, St. Paul; his daughter, Janet, Chicago, and daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Jack Weinhold, Pittsburgh were there with a daughter and son-in law, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Freeman, Neenah.

Len told his friends about plans to retire at the end of the year and of the upcoming trip to Florida. Together they talked about old times. And they simply said "thanks."

Spice request relayed to governor's office

Outagamie County Sheriff Calvin Spice's request for an investigation of the district attorney's office has been referred to Gov. Patrick Lucey.

Wisconsin Atty. Gen. Robert Warren, to whose office Spice's request was made, notified the sheriff today that the matter has been referred to Lucey under provisions of a state statute.

"Section 17.16 of the Wisconsin statutes provides that the governor has the sole authority to initiate or order an investigation relative to the allegations referred to in your letter," Warren notified Spice.

The same statute, Warren stated, gives the governor sole authority to remove a district attorney for cause.

"Due to the seriousness of the allegations enumerated in your letter," Warren explained, "this department stands ready to assist the governor in the proper disposition of this matter if he so requests."

Warren also sent Spice a copy of his referral letter to Lucey.

Spice sent Warren a letter Friday saying he desired an investigation of Dist. Atty. John Ensley's office because of what he charged "an almost complete lack of prosecution of serious violations of the law, the complete abuse of plea bargaining and outright dismissals of serious felony counts without consulting complainants or my officers first."

David Hase, legal counselor in Lucey's office, had told The Post-Crescent Tuesday that since there were no allegations of criminal misconduct, he believed Warren's office should initiate an investigation if one was thought necessary.

Representatives of Warren's and Lucey's offices conferred on Spice's request Wednesday.

Ensley said Spice's request was politically motivated and was a malicious attack on his office.

Supv. Fred Rehfeldt, chairman of the county board's Judiciary and Enforcement Committee, said that Spice and Ensley will be called to a committee meeting Friday morning to discuss problems outlined by Spice.

No action on plan to detach

BY ED VAN BERKEL
Post-Crescent staff writer

LITTLE CHUTE — After more than three hours of debate and discussion Tuesday night, Agency 8 school committee took no action on a request signed by over 200 residents of a portion of the Kaukuana school district seeking detachment from that district and assignment to the Little Chute district.

Despite pleas for positive action from members of the audience of over 100 who attended the public hearing, the committee deferred the detachment request to a joint meeting of the two boards of education of the districts and set an 8 p.m. Nov. 29 meeting for further action.

The majority of residents in an area located to the north, east and west of the Little Chute district, comprising portions of Little Chute and the Town of VandenBroek, are seeking the change in school district lines. This is the third time many of the people involved have sought the change, still without success.

The majority of those seeking detachment argue about unnecessary bus transportation when their children are within walking distance of the Little Chute High School. The social ties of children to Little Chute and the inability of students to participate in extra-curricular school activities as a result of busing and the need for Little Chute students to make new friends once they leave grade school and begin attending classes in Kaukuana were also cited. The latter applies mostly to youngsters who grew up attending the parochial schools.

Proponents of the change also argued that the Little Chute system is adequate, had been approved by the state, has a better student-teacher and student-counselor ratio than Kaukauna, and that the students have more opportunities in a small school system. They also pointed out that the board of education of Little Chute has promised to furnish bus transportation for all students who are unable to reach the school using sidewalks.

Persons desiring to remain in the Kaukauna district point to the larger curriculum available and say they feel the Kaukauna schools excel in all aspects of education.

They claim their children attending public grade school in Kaukauna are making friends in that district and prefer to remain in that system throughout their school career.

Many persons, including Town of VandenBroek chairman George Spierings, objected to the boundaries of the area seeking detachment, noting that it appeared to have been drawn to eliminate those persons who fought previous detachment hearings. They also claim that many of the signers of the detachment petition are residents of mobile home parks and, although voters, are not taxpayers. They questioned how non-taxpayers can force their wishes on property owners.

Major boundary lines in the area results in some residents having portions of their property in two different school districts and they claim this will cause problems for the assessor.

Kaukauna School Atty. Donald Green said his board has attempted to meet with Little Chute board members in an effort to come to some agreement on new boundary lines.

Little Chute Atty. Joseph Cummings countered by saying it was not the local school board which was seeking a change in boundaries, but residents of the area and all the Little Chute board could do would be to accept or oppose the change.

Storytelling

Witches and goblins were present in most schools Wednesday to explain some of the true stories of Halloween. At Huntley, the tales were brought to life for the pupils by a unit which presented a play. Participants were, from left, Jennifer Samuels, Shelli Genda, the storytelling witch, David Deltour, Tim Moore, Dan West and Mike Dart. (Post-Crescent photo)

Per-student cost ceiling raised for Little Chute

LITTLE CHUTE–School Supt. Mark Stone has been informed by the state Department of Public Instruction that the school district will be allowed to exceed cost controls calling for no more than a $55 per student increase in the new school budget.

The cost control limit was established by the state when it increased school aids, but Little Chute was faced with a need to increase the budget by much more than the $55 due to the closing of St. John High School and the transfer of those students to the public school.

Included in the additional costs were the leasing of St. John High School as a middle school, the purchasing of fixed equipment at the school, the hiring of janitors and the purchasing of textbooks. Also, seven new teachers were hired by the public high school to accommodate the near doubling of enrollment.

Stone and the school board asked exemptions of $149,416 over the limit increase and the state granted exemptions of $60,700. "I'm very happy with the exemptions allowed," said Stone as he indicated the school district should be able to live within the annual budget approved in July.

The school district anticipates $704,000 in state aids this year compared to $304,000 last year. Of the increase, about $120,000 is a result of an increase of enrollment of about 200 students and the remainder is the increase allowed in the state budget.

tration or grievance procedures. Johnston said the attempt is to generalize certain portions of the contract.

The proposal calls for eliminating the present reference to class size, which includes no maximum numbers, and revising workloads at the senior high to make them more equal to those of teachers in the junior highs.

It also proposes eliminating the requirement that teachers take education improvement classes every five to seven years, but also eliminates the payment of $30 per credit. And it calls for putting a three-day limit on the new unlimited emergency leave (with a total of five days per year) and for a 5 per cent service charge for checking off dues from AEA members' paychecks.

The board proposal makes no salary recommendation, but calls for instituting a long-term disability insurance program, as does the AEA proposal.

NEWS RELEASE

At the Session of the Grand Lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Jurisdiction of Wisconsin, held in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, June 11th, 12th, and 13th, a resolution was enacted to denounce the National Constitution concerning all references to discrimination in membership on the basis of Race. This also applied to Rebekah Lodges under the Jurisdiction of the Rebekah State Assembly, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Jurisdiction of Wisconsin.

At the Session of the National Sovereign Grand Lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, held in New York City, September 17th, 18th, 19th, 20th, and 21st, legislation was enacted to remove all references to discrimination in membership on the basis of Race, contained in the laws of the Order.

The Independent Order of Odd Fellows has now fully established an "open-door" policy, therefore, any female person of good character, over 16 years of age, who believes in a Supreme Being, the Creator and Preserver of the Universe, shall be eligible for membership in Rebekah Lodges of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. Members of Odd Fellow Lodges may also apply for membership in Rebekah Lodges. Rebekah Lodges throughout the Jurisdiction have been advised to contact members of minority groups to acquaint them with the principles of Odd Fellowship and encourage their membership in a Rebekah Lodge. Kaukauna council cuts $60,000

KAUKAUNA — The City Council, meeting as a committee of the whole Wednesday night, reviewed the executive budget proposed by Mayor Robert La Plante which called for expenditures of $5,165,580 in 1974, compared with a 1973 budget of $5,050,197.

The figure represents proposed spending for municipal government plus all school district, county, state and vocaional school tax responsibilities.

When the council sets final expenditures for municipal government, it then will subtract all expected revenues. The remainder will constitute the 1974 tax levy, from which the tax rate will be determined.

The committee found five areas of the proposed budget where cuts were made, four of these recommended by the mayor. Cuts amounting to $70,882 were made, but in another area the budget was increased by $10,000, making net cuts of $60,882. Aldermen hastened to point out that cuts were tentative and that the money could be reinstated before the budget was adopted.

Action on adopting a tentative 1974 budget was postponed until the regular council meeting Tuesday.

Cuts approved by the committee included $25,000 from the concrete road program to reduce the proposed cost to $150,000; $25,000 from cost of moving from the present city hall to new quarters expected to be available next year with an original moving estimate cost of $50,000; $5,800 from police and fire moving costs; elimination of a second man in the building inspector's office, $8,732, and a reduction of $2,000 in street superintendent expenses to $1,600.

A $4,350 appropriation for police radio equipment was deleted when City Atty. Donald Green pointed out that the equipment could be part of a bond issue.

The executive budget was increased $10,000 to $115,000 in garbage disposal costs after aldermen noted that costs had been increasing from $6,000 to $8,000 a year, and the mayor's proposed budget called for only a $1,0000 increase.

The committee noted that county taxes and payments to Fox Valley Technical Institute were slightly higher than originally expected.

Square dancers

The in dance at Appleton High School-East these days is an old-fashioned square dance. The students involved in the extra-curricular activity, under the guidance of David Hussey, a physical education teacher, have been asked to perform at the state teachers' convention this week in Milwaukee. Ducking under the arch are Jay Sauter and Greta Bravick. (Post-Crescent photo)

Complicated sidewalk proposals have aldermen scratching heads

Members of the Appleton Street and Sanitation Committee scribbled on a blackboard, consulted maps, reviewed pedestrian and traffic flow data and scratched their heads a lot before coming up with a preliminary sidewalk policy that they hope to act on Nov. 19.

The committee wants some time to consider the implications of a proposed policy that would:

— Require sidewalks on both sides of all state and county highways and designated primary and collector streets.

— Require walks where they are ordered in by the City Council after meeting certain pedestrian and traffic flow standards.

— Require sidewalks on city blocks (the committee's definition of a block includes partial as well as four-sided blocks) where over 50 per cent of the block is already crossed by sidewalks.

— Allow sidewalk opponents to appeal sidewalk orders. Where the area does not meet the criteria, walks could not be ordered in.

The committee's action Wednesday did not seem to cool Ald. Edward Maloney's intention to have a referendum on sidewalk construction asking residents if they would favor an automatic requirement for sidewalks within two years of construction of all permanently paved streets and if the city should pick up part of the cost of sidewalk construction rather than leaving residents with 100 per cent of the bill.

Ald. Glenn Thompson, however, said a referendum like that couldn't fail with 75-80 per cent of the voters already having sidewalks.

Aldermen discussed other alternatives Wednesday, in search of a policy that would relieve some aldermen from the ticklish task of having to order in sidewalks in the face of heavy public opposition.

Thompson would like a clearcut policy that would provide an alderman with a defense, should he be confronted by such opposition, while allowing residents with legitimate gripes to oppose sidewalk installation on the basis of criteria that is not met.

The policy would require sidewalks along both sides of a street where peak traffic flows are 50 to 100 vehicles per hour and 250 pedestrians per day or 100 vehicles per hour and 125 pedestrians per day.

Installation would not be automatic, however. It would still have to be ordered in by aldermen.

Tests along Fremont Street, east of Telulah Avenue, showed vehicle and pedestrian flows that would justify sidewalks on both sides of the street. There are not sidewalks on both sides of the street at this time.

While committeemen did formulate a tentative policy, all of them questioned some aspects of it.

Maloney said there are areas that would not meet the pedestrian and traffic criteria that the policy includes where some would still want to see sidewalks for their children going to and from school.

Public Works Director Robert Miller said present policy — which leaves it pretty much up to aldermen in wards involved and the City Council to decide where to order sidewalks in — there is more flexibility. But there is no uniformity.

Thompson at one point suggested a policy requiring walks on all improved streets unless the council disapproves it, but that prompted little discussion.

Miller noted that the City Council has twice before tried to establish a sidewalk policy but reached an impasse over what criteria to use.

There was some concern about the requirement for walks on both sides of primary and collector streets. This would include some city parks and the municipal golf course.

Supper, play planned for first meeting of Singles Activity Club

A new organization, the Singles Activity Club, for adults 23 and over, will have its first open meeting Tuesday at the Appleton YMCA.

It will begin with a 6 p.m. potluck supper, followed by excerpts from a play, "Somewhere I have Never Traveled," which will be presented by the Y Community Theater.

A social hour will start at 7:45 p.m. A meeting to plan future events and put together a newsletter for distribution has been set for 8:30 p.m.

The club is planning a calendar of events, which will include volleyball, swimming, archery, badminton, plus regular Tuesday evening meetings.

Murder complaint may be given new judge

OSHKOSH — Since significant new information is not expected in the Alvin Manteufel murder investigation, officials here apparently are waiting for a new district attorney to present basically the same complaint to a new judge.

The result is expected to be the refiling of a first-degree murder charge against Mrs. Noreen Kelly of Appleton within 60 days.

That decision is being made in the wake of Judge James V. Sitter's dismissal Saturday of the murder charge against Mrs. Kelly, 44, 602 S. Mayflower Drive. She had been charged with the Aug. 22 shooting death of Manteufel, 68, at his rural Neenah home.

Sitter ruled that there was insufficient evidence linking Mrs. Kelly to the shooting, so he dismissed the charge before she was brought to trial.

"We're going to try again," commented Lt. Wilbur Fuller of the Winnebago County Sheriff's Department detective division. Fuller, who headed a seven-week investigation into the shooting, said, "All we can do is present what facts are there."

Presenting the same facts again to the same judge presumably would result in another dismissal, so Dist. Atty. William Carver has decided to hold the complaint until Sitter's term expires in January.

At that time, Carver himself will take over as judge, having defeated Sitter in the spring election. A new district attorney to replace Carver has not yet been named.

Carver said the case would be presented to the new district attorney, "to see if he agrees with my assessment of the facts." If that happens, the murder charge would be refiled in county court.

"I wouldn't be able to participate in any of the judicial acts" concerning the case, Carver said. A substitute judge would have to be appointed to hear the case.

Stage play set at West

"Flowers for Algernon," by David Rogers, based on the novel by Daniel Keyes and known to many by its film version, "Charly," will be on stage Thursday through Saturday, Nov. 8-10, in the Appleton High School-West auditorium, with a 7:30 curtain nightly.

The film of this play earned Cliff Robertson an academy award for his role of Charly Gordon.

Charly is mentally retarded, with an IQ of 70. He is an overgrown kid, the butt of cruel humor of the men at the bakery where he sweeps the floors. At the clinic to which he is sent for observation, even a mouse can beat him in tracing a maze. But Charly is amiable, earnest and eager to learn. Through the miracle of science fiction, Charly's brain is allowed to develop to that of a mental giant. But after having achieved manhood as an intelligent human, Charly faces the possibility of losing all he worked to gain.

Who is Charly? Charly reely wants to lern like other pepul — to reed and rite good. He has fun working at the bakery with Mrs. Donner. Joe and Frank work at the bakery to. Joe, Frank and Charly laff alot. One day Charly gets operationed on. Charly becomes smart. IQ 185. But with intelligence comes awareness. Charly finds that those he thought were his friends were only laughing at him. And Charly remembers ... the mother who could not accept him, a sister who hated him and a father too weak to help him. Charly finds it difficult to cope emotionally with his intelligence and he is driven by a need to succeed through research and discovery. Charly races against time, for the inevitable must come, too, and Charly is aware of that — most of all.

But who is Charly? A boy? A man? One of us? To learn, see Charly at AHS-West next week.

The cast for "Flowers for Algernon" includes nine sophomores and 19 juniors and seniors. Technical crews and box office personnel number 150 students. Preparation for the show began Oct. 2.

TV Scout
Good night for 'Toma'

7-8 Channels 9-11 — If you haven't tried Toma yet, this is a good night to sample the new show. There's a well-constructed hour about a load of heroin which accidentally winds up in the hands of an amateur (Michael Tolan), who thinks he can sell it. Toma (Tony Musante) tracks him down and convinces him to help nail some big dealers.

7-8 Channels 2-7 — The Waltons help another stray. Hobie (Michael McGreevey) is a big, bold, bragging kid who grew up in an orphanage. Now he has a chance to become a pro baseball player, but something happens to spoil that chance, and it's up to the Waltons to restore his ambition.

7-8 Channel 5 — The Flip Wilson Show has help from the husband-and-wife team, Robert Goulet and Carol Lawrence, tonight. Goulet has a strong ballad, "Quiet Room," and Carol picks three men from the studio audience as dance partners. Slappy White has a few comments on racial harmony and Flip plays a diamond merchant.

8-9 Channel 5 — Ironside tells a grim story of a gang that imports illegal Mexican aliens to be domestics. Although it leads to murder, it is the machinations of these flesh peddlers that is most frightening. It's a good story, but it would have been better without the contrived murder.

8-9 Channels 9-11 — Kung Fu's tale is a parable about good and evil. Caine (David Carradine) meets a loser (Jack Elam) who accidentally becomes a winner. It goes to his head, and his trigger finger.

9-10 Channel 5 — Sammy Davis Jr. as a Nazi U-boat skipper? That's the best fun on the newly-retitled Sammy Davis Jr. Starring In NBC Follies. The skit has him and Jim Nabors as submariners in World War II. Richard Crenna shows he can sing and dance, with "It's De-Lovely." Sandy Duncan and Mickey Rooney help, and there are two good vaudeville acts — the Jolly Jovers, a comedy balancing act from England, and the Gauchos, an Argentinian group who spin bolos, dance and throw knives.

9-10 Channels 9-11 — The Streets of San Francisco has a somewhat flat story which aims at showing that even the little people get justice. While the whole police force tracks down the killer of an important Japanese visitor, nobody seems to care who attacked a small-time street hustler — except Steve (Michael Douglas) and the hustler's bitter daughter (Judyann Elder, wife of playwright Lonnie Elder).

Outagamie lists decline in governmental units

Outagamie County officially has six fewer governmental units now than it listed in 1967, according to a Census of Governments. There still are more local governmental units at work in the county than in Winnebago, Waupaca or Calumet county, according to a recent Department of Commerce report.

That study shows some 46 units of government in Outagamie County, 39 of which have property taxing powers.

They consist of 11 municipal governments, 20 town governments, 7 independent school districts, 7 special districts and the county government.

That means that the county has an agency of government for every 2,596 persons. The average elsewhere in the nation is one for every 2,676 and in the state, one for every 1,804.

A comparison of the local governmental structure has been made possible through a report, "Governmental Operation," recently released by the Department of Commerce.

The data for it was gathered from all parts of the country in connection with the 1972 Census of Governments. The findings indicate that, in many areas, community affairs are being directed less and less by county, municipal and town governments and more and more by autonomous or semi-autonomous sub-divisions.

Increasingly, the controls are being delegated to school districts and to special districts with responsibilities over toll roads, bridges, water supply, fire and flood control, public housing and the like.

Nationally, there has been a reduction of 3.7 per cent in the number of local governments in a five year period.

In that time period Winnebago County reduced the number of local governments by two units, a drop to 25 governments. The report listed five municipal governments, 16 town governments, 2 school districts and a special district in the county.

The county listed the highest number of persons for each governing body in the four-county area with 5,196 persons for each unit. That can be contrasted to Waupaca County which gained three units of government, pegging units at 44, one for every 859 persons. There were 12 municipal governments, 22 town governments, 7 school districts and 2 special districts in the county.

In Calumet County reports showed addition of six governmental units to the 1967 total to reach 25 units. Of those six were municipal and 9 town governments. Five of the remaining governments were school districts and four were special districts. That total indicated there was, in 1972, a local governmental unit for every 1,104 persons in the county.

In many communities, national figures indicate, the trend is toward a streamlining of the governmental process. Nationally, the number of local governmental agencies dropped from 81,299 to 78,268 in the five years.

Irving's wife freed pending a new trial

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Edith Irving, whose husband's attempt to write a bogus biography of Howard Hughes landed her in jail, has been freed pending a new trial.

Mrs. Irving, who was convicted March 8 on a guilty plea, acted as a courier in Swiss bank transactions involving $650,000 in advances given her husband by McGraw-Hill, the New York publisher victimized by the hoax.

Mrs. Irving appealed, contending she was denied benefit of a rule favoring defendants on doubtful points. She said her only motive in helping her husband, Clifford, was to save a faltering marriage. Irving also is in jail.

The new trial could mean a lighter sentence.

Three-dimensional eggshell picture

BY CAPPY DICK

An eggshell can be turned into a comical three-dimensional picture of a funny face by following today's fun project directions for boys and girls. The diagrams in the adjoining picture show what it will look like.

The completed egg picture

will be a novel addition to the ornaments on your desk or in your curio cabinet. You may even want to make a collection of them, a different face on each shell.

Cut a hole in the cardboard background into which one half of a carefully broken eggshell will fit snugly as in Figure 1. Glue a piece of cardboard to the back of the frame to serve as an easel.

Break the egg carefully, then wash the shell to be sure it is thoroughly clean.

Handle the shell gently as you fit it into the hole in the cardboard Apply transparent tape to the back of the cardboard to hold the shell securely.

The only thing remaining to do is to use your fiber-tippped marking pens to draw the funny face (Figure 2) on the exposed area of the shell.

Mothers! If you need new ideas to entertain your children's scout meetings and birthday parties, you'll find 45 of them in Cappy Dick's "Birthday Party Stunts" booklet. To get a copy, send 50 cents in coin and a self addressed, stamped envelope to Cappy Dick Booklets, P.O. Box 42877, Evergreen Park, Ill. 60642.

Tomorrow, directions for making a square bracelet!

Longest strike: The world's longest recorded strike ended on Jan. 4, 1961, after 33 years. It concerned the employment of barbers' assistants in Copenhagen, Denmark. The longest recorded major strike was one at the plumbing fixtures factory of the Kohler Co., in Sheboygan, Wisconsin, between April, 1954, and October, 1962. The strike is alleged to have cost the United Automobile Workers' Union about $12,000,000 to sustain.

Bluejays, Zephyrs to clash Saturday

By GEORGE MANCOSKY
Post-Crescent staff writer

MENASHA — A historic first will be established Saturday when the football teams representing Menasha and St. Mary Central High Schools clash at 1 p.m. at Calder Stadium.

The game is one of two involving Fox Valley Christian Conference members. Premontre is host to Beloit Catholic in the other.

St. Mary and Menasha inaugurated their athletic relationship last spring and have faced each other in track, tennis and cross country, but Saturday's encounter will be the first before a large corwd. They'll also collide in basketball later this month.

The Zephyrs take a 7-2 record into the intracity tussle, including 6-2 in FVCC play, food for a second place tie. They won their last four games and their two losses were by a combined total of four points.

Menasha chalked up a 3-5 season's mark, including 2-5 in the Fox Valley Association but in none of the games were the Jays outclassed. Their peak efforts were 12-0 and 16-14 decisions over Oshkosh West and Neenah, respectively.

Although the schools, located four blocks apart, haven't squared off previously on the gridiron, they aren't altogether strangers. Previous seasons found them scrimmaging each other and they were involved in a pair of home doubleheaders this fall.

They haven't faced any common opponents.

The teams present a contrast in styles. Zephyr Coach Avitus Ripp relies ona grind-it-out ground game with an occasional pass and a tough defense, which this year was the best in the FVCC.

Bluejay Coach Jim Corrigan has gone to a more wide-open attack with his double slot offense and frequent trios via the aerial route.

Ripp was guarded in his remarks about the game, not wishing to say anything that the Jays could use as a weapon gainst his club.

He preferred to talk about Menasha and his days in high school when he and Corrigan faced each other as members of Middleton and Fort Atkinson teams, respectively.

"Jim has done a real good job. He's gotten a lot of mileage from his team. They're hard-hitting and explosive," were about the extent of Ripp's remarks.

"I don't know as much about them as the teams in our conference," Corrigan said, noting that he only saw the Zephyrs in half of the Premontre game.

The Bluejay mentor expects it will be a physical game with emotions high. He cited the importance of stopping the Zephyr ground attack.

When asked to compare their opponents to teams in their respective conferences, Corrigan said St. Mary was similar to Oshkosh North while Ripp noted Manitowoc Roncalli probably came the closest to the Bluejay style of attack.

Bucs trade May for Jerry Reuss

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates have acquired their second pitcher in two weeks by sending reserve catcher Milt May to the Houston Astros for left-hander Jerry Reuss.

And General Manager Joe L. Brown, attempting to rejuvenate a club that finished in third place this year after three consecutive division titles, promises further trades.

"One club told me it will contact me tonight," Brown said Wednesday night. "Three other clubs spoke to me this morning and the door is still open on trades."

Milt May

The May-Reuss swap was a one-for-one deal.

Reuss said he was both "surprised and shocked" by the trade.

"I'm surprised because they (Astros) received only a second-string catcher for me," the 24-year-old pitcher said in Houston following the trade. "I thought I was worth more than Milt May."

Reuss said he has watched May catch a few games and added, "He didn't impress me. Maybe he's better than I think, but I just have to go on what I've seen."

The 6-foot-5 Reuss is the second left-hander acquired by the Pirates since the season ended. On Oct. 18, Pittsburgh traded second baseman Dave Cash to Philadelphia for Ken Brett.

Reuss had his finest year last season with a 16-13 record. In 40 starts, he completed 12 games and had an earned run average of 3.74.

May is 23 and was the Pirates startingcatcher in 1973 until mid-June when Manny Sanguillen moved behind the plate from right field. May batted .269 and hit seven home runs while driving in 31.

In Houston, Astros General Manager Spec Richardson says Milt May will be the No. 1 catcher for the Astros next season.

"I don't look at it from the point of view of our dealing for the Pirates' backup catcher," said Richardson. "He's going to be the No. 1 catcher for us."

Extend lease on stadium

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) —Tentative agreement has been reached on extension of the Green Bay Packers' lease of Milwaukee County Stadium, the Packers said today.

A Packer spokesman said representatives of the team and Milwaukee County had met and worked out the agreement, which calls for the addition of 3,300 seats to the stadium, and consequent adjustment of the rental fee.

The Packers divide their home season between Milwaukee and Green Bay.

The lease for use of Milwaukee County Stadium, which expires in March of 1976, would be extended to March 31, 1981, under the tentative agreement, with a three-year option for renewal.

The County Park Commission's recommendation for extending the lease is to be presented the the County Board's Finance Committee and then to the full board.

Gibron believes Bears are now on the upswing

By LEE REMMEL
Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY—For the Packers, there never has baen a good time to play the Bears.

Even the "Pepsi Generation" has come to know that the Bruins put uncommon gest into their encounters with our heroes, not to mention a gratuitous karate chop or two.

But the timing of Sunday's 109th exchange in pro football's most venerable rivalry, to be staged in Lambeau Field, could hardly be less propitious.

The Packers, there is little need to note, are struggling to recapture the positive approach after successive nightmares in Los Angeles (24-7) and Detroit (34-0).

The Bears, in contrast, are on the ascent after cracking a three-game losing streak with a 35-14 rout of the Houston Oilers last time out.

Even Abe Gibron, the Midway Monsters' bulking head man, concedes his street fighters have been rejuvenated.

"I feel things are beginning to turn around for us," he said by phone from his Chicago office Wednesday evening. "I think the attitude has been real, real good. And that's 90 per cent of it.

"I didn't feel we executed real well against Houston Sunday. But defensively we played fantastic."

Predictably, Gibron declined to take heart from the manner in which the Packers were overrun by Los Angeles and Detroit. Infact, he was quick to assure that he did not things in that light.

"I thought the Packers did a good job against the Rams after seeing the film," he said. "They just got some people hurt and that hurt them. It was a close game up until Willie Buchanon had his leg broken on that play in the end zone.

"At Detroit, they caught a team where the owners was threatening a guy's livelihood, a lot of funny things can happen.

"I don't see that much difference in the Packers of the present and the ones that won the division last year. They were winning the close one last year and now they're losing 'em."

Speaking of losing, what had befallen his team during its recent drought, after a good pre-season?

"A lot things happened," he said. "A team's got to win, and we lost two heartbreakers in a row to Dallas and Minnesota. We had both games under control and let them get away.

We make a great comeback gainst a good football team at Denver in our third game. Then we get caught looking over our shoulder at New Orleans. You've got to show your team the film of the games they lost to Atlanta (62-7) and Dallas (40-3), and that didn't help any.

"Then we move into Atlanta, where the coach is threatening the players and owner is threatening the coach, and we get whipped.

"We should never have lost the New England game the next week. We had it until there was one minute left to play. Actually, by rights, we should be 4-3 right now instead of 2-5."

Putting that unpleasantness behind him, the Bears' massive field leader assured, "We've got a good attitude again and we're playing together. That's all you can ask. If our special people can cut down on the mistakes — they've been making quite a few — we should be all right.

"Carl Garrett (acquired in an off-season trade with New England) had a few fumbles that hurt us, but now he's playing great again. He's not the only one — I'm just using him as an example."

How close are the Bears to being a serious contender?

"We're one or two players away, Abe replied. "We're short in a couple of skill spots. A couple key players would help us a lot.

"Dick Butkus, of course, has come back and is playing real well, which has been a big help He's not 100 per cent but he hasn't been for the last three years. But at 50 per cent, he's still a great one."

Gibron admitted No. 1 draftee Wally Chambers, the 6-foot-7, 258-pound rookie from Eastern Kentucky, also has made a substantial difference in the defense.

"He's going to be a great one," Gibron said. "He has a lot to learn and he hits a little high once in a while, but he has great lateral pursuit and great desire."

Asked about reports that ex-Packer Zeke Bratkowski has been the subject of some criticism for his play calling (sound familiar?) Abe dismissed them as routine.

"That happens when you lose," he said. "No matter what you call, I might add, it won't work if you don't execute. Zone defenses have caused everybody to take a little heat about their offense.

"If you can't run the ball down their throats these days, you're in trouble."

John Storzer dies

RIPON —Veteran Ripon College football coach and athletic director John Storzer died early today as the result of a heart attack

Storzer was stricken by the heart attack early in the morning at his home and died about two hours later at Ripon Memorial Hospital.

Storzer, born May 31, 1920, in Mountain, won five Midwest Conference football championships during his 16 years at Ripon College. This year the Redmen are 4-1-1 and in contention with games remaining with leading Monmouth and runnerup Coe.

His Ripon football teams were 87-38-4. The 53-year-old former Navy officer, who saw action in the South Pacific during World War II, joined the Ripon staff in 1957. He was a graduate of Green Bay West High School, earned his bachelors at UW-River Falls and received his masters at the University of Minnesota.

Storzer was an associate professor of physical education and chairman of the physical education department.

He is survived by his wife, Harriet, and a 14-year-old son, Tobin.

Funeral arrangements are pending.

Steelers won't take Unitas from Chargers

SAN DIEGO (AP) —The Pittsburgh Steelers, who didn't want John Unitas in 1955, say they still don't want him.

The San Diego Chargers, who bought Unitas from Baltimore for $150,000 this year and signed him to a two-year contract reportedly worth $250,000 a season, offerd the 40-year-old quarterback to the Steelers this week.

The Steelers, who originally drafted Unitas in 1955 but released him before the season, replied, "we're not interested," a Pittsburgh spokesman said Wednesday.

Steelers' Vice President Dan Rooney said Coach Chuck Noll, a former assistant at Baltimore, turned down a deal for Unitas even though starter Terry Bradshaw is sidelined by a shoulder injury and backup Terry Hanratty has bruised ribs.

Rooney quoted Noll as saying Sunday "he was satisfied with his remaining quarterbacks, and he said that again at a press luncheon Monday." After the call from Chargers executive counsel Ron Mix, Rooney said, "there was no change in Chuck's sentiments."

Since the National Football League trading deadline has expired, players can change clubs only by waivers, in which teams can enter a claim in reverse order of last year's finish. The new team assumes the player's current salary.

However, Mix said San Diego would want more than the $100 waiver price for the NFL's all-time leading passer.

"There is no way we are going to give John Unitas away," Mix said. "A very high price was placed on Unitas." He didn't name the price.

Unitas, who played a year of sandlot ball and then signed with the Colts after his initial rejection by the Steelers, was benched by Baltimore at midseason last year, then sold to the Chargers this season.

He started San Diego's first four games but was benched midway through a 38-21 loss to Pittsburgh Oct. 7 and hasn't played since.

Cavs feel Celts' wrath

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tommy Heinsohn gave the Boston Celtics a mental whipping and they made the Cleveland Cavaliers pay for it.

After being chewed out by the boss, the Celtics chewed up the Cavaliers 128-110 in the National Basketball Association Wednesday night.

"We were sky-high tonight," said Heinsohn.

And for good reason. Before the game, the fiery Boston coach gave his team an earful for losing a 102-99 decision to the Cavs last Sunday.

The Celtics' victory was their fifth in eight starts and moved them into a virtual tie with idle Buffalo for the lead in the NBA's Atlantic Division.

In the night's other NBA games, the New York Knicks trimmed the Houston Rockets 102-91 and the Detroit Pistons beat the Seattle SuperSonics 114-107.

In the American Basketball Association,the Denver Rockets beat the New York Nets 107-104; the Kentucky Colonels walloped the San Diego Conquistadors 146-105 and the San Antonio Spurs edged the Carolina Cougars 101-99 in overtime.

Don Nelson and Don Chaney sparked Boston to a 17-point lead in the first seven minutes and the aggressive Celtics went on to their easy victory over Cleveland.

Knicks 102, Rockets 91

Dave DeBusschere and Willis Reed led New York on a fourthquarter surge. The Knicks entered the last quarter with a 7568 lead but opened it up to 19 points behind their two big guns. Reed led the Knicks with 21 points and DeBusschere had 20.

Pistons 114, SuperSonics 107

Dave Bing and Curtis Rowe combined for 19 points in the final period to help Detroit beat Seattle 114-107. Bing scored 28 points overall and Rowe had 21 to power the Piston attack.

Rockets 107, Nets 104

Rookie Mike Green hit a layup after a blocked shot to put Denver ahead with 51 seconds left and the Rockets held on to beat New York. The Rockets rallied from a 16-point deficit in the third quarter to snap a three-game losing streak.

Colonels 146, Conquistadors 105

Kentucky tied an ABA rebounding record and set five team marks in beatingSan Diego 146-105. The Colonels grabbed a club-record 83 rebounds. Sixty of those were defensive rebounds to tie a league record.

Spurs 101, Cougars 99

James Silas scored six points in overtime, including the deciding field goal, to lead San Antonio to a 101-99 triumph over Carolina.The Spurs rallied to tie the game at 91-91 at the end of regulation play.

Coach raps North Stars after loss

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Minnesota North Stars are in a rut and Coach Jack Gordon is getting fed up.

"When you're outshot 14-4 in the first period," grumbled Gordon after Wednesday night's 5-0 loss to the Boston Bruins. "It shows me something ... a lack of desire."

The Stars also have a lack of victories. Minnesota, the National Hockey League's only winless club, has gone to the post 11 times this year and come away with five losses and six ties.

"It was a disgrace," continued Gordon. "If you're not in shape physically, you're not mentally prepared."

Gordon promptly announced two-a-day workouts, starting Thursday.

In other NHL games, the Buffalo Sabres beat the California Golden Seals 3-2 and the Pittsburgh Penguins skated to a 1-1 tie with the Montreal Canadiens.

In the World Hockey Association, the Cleveland Crusaders trimmed the Winnipeg Jets 6-4 and the Quebec Nordiques dumped the Vancouver Blazers 5-1.

Gordon cited the play of goalie Cesar Maniago as one of the few bright spots for his team.

"If Cesar didn't make all those bloody saves, they would have hit double figures," said the coach.

Sabres 3, Seals 2

Rick Martin scored all three Buffalo goals and California managed just 19 shots on goal, only four of them in the first period. The Sabres were making their first appearance since losing star center Gil Perreault Sunday with a broken leg.

Penguins 1, Canadiens 1

Peter Mahovlich scored in the second period for Montreal and Lowell Macdonald tied it for Pittsburgh in the third. Canadiens' Coach Scotty Bowman was unhappy with his team's performance but he was really angry with referee Wally Harris. "This guy is a lousy referee. He's afraid to give a penalty in this building," declared Bowman, speaking of the Montreal Forum. "I'll bet you that over the past four or five years, he hasn't called more than four or five penalties a game here."

Crusaders 6, Jets 4

Cleveland's Jim Wiste broke a 4-4 tie with a power-play goal from 15 feet out in the final period, and Wayne Hillman added an 80-footer into an open net with just 22 seconds left.

Nordiques 5, Blazers 1

Jeannot Gilbert, Rejean Houle and Alain Caron notched first-period goals and Quebec coasted to its eighth win against four losses and no ties.

Finley on probation, too

NEW YORK (AP) — Owner Charles O. Finley of the Oakland A's has been put on probation for his conduct during the World Series, The Associated Press has learned.

The baseball commissioner's office confirmed Wednesday night a report that the Oakland owner had received the notice of the probation at the same time he was hit with a $7,000 fine earlier this week.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's letter to Finley notified him of the fine and also stated:

"I also determine that you personally shall be placed on probation until further notice and warn you that further conduct not in the best interest of baseball may lead to disciplinary action against you as provided in Articlel of the major league agreement."

Article 1 gives the commissioner the power to remove an owner from a club if he feels it is in baseball's best interests.

Finley was unavailable for comment.

The controversial Oakland owner was fined for various misconducts during the recent Series with the New York Mets. The most notorious of his escapades was the Mike Andrews case.

Finley raised the commissioner's ire—and that of many other parties—when he forced the veteran Andrews to go on the disabled list after the second baseman made two costly errors in the Series' second game, won by the Mets 10-7 in 12 innings.

Neenah driver competes in road racing 'super bowl'

BY GEORGE MANCOSKY
Post-Crescent staff writer

NEENAH —"I got tired of Capt. (now Chief) Vern Wollerman picking me up in the street," Dan Kampo, Neenah driver, replied when asked how he ventured into the road racing business.

Kampo, his crew and his sleek red Lola A sports racer are in Gainsville, Ga. this week where Sunday they hope to win the Sports Car of Americas road racing championship in their class.

His crew consists of Dave Wollerman (son of the Neenah police chief) who does all the engine work, and Joe Fermanich, New London, and Pete Schaefer, who handle the suspension work.

The 25-year old driver qualified for the nationals, which he calls "the Super Bowl of road racing" by compiling the most points in his class in the central division of the road racing circuit last summer.

The divisions are determined by the various time zones and, in Georgia, he will be competing against 20 other high scorers in A sports racing, the sport's fastest class.

Kampo purchased his 1971 Lola TTT (it's considered an old car in racing circles) in midseason and entered five races, winning several. Before procuring the car, which was priced at between $55,000 and $75,000 when new, he drove a Ford Formula car, which he still has.

The Can-Am car, previously driven by Peter Revson, was built in England.

It carries 75 gallons of fuel and weighs about 1,200 pounds. The tires are bald and usually last for three or four races. Another type is used if the track is wet.

"The A sports racer is the fastest racing car in the world," the driver declared. "I could go out on 41 (highway) and do 200 miles an hour. It's faster than Indianapolis cars because their cars are limited and ours aren't. It's also faster than drag racers," he declared.

Kampo doesn't hesitate to give the bulk of the credit for his success to his crew. "I don't even know how to start the car," he adds.

"It's a team effort. If Dave would make one mistake we lose and if I make a mistake he doesn't go," the Kampo Enterprises driver explained.

The mechanic studies the track before the race and then installs the gears according to the length of the straightaway. Kampo and Wollerman have been together about a year. "Before that I was lost," the driver explained.

Races usually are 30 minutes long, and the driver covering the greatest distance in that time is declared the winner.

Races this summer took the car and crew to tracks in Illinois, Ohio and Indianapolis (not the Motor Speedway) as well as Road America at Elkhart Lake. The car blew an engine in the Can-Am race at Road America.

He needed a first, second or third place in the Indianapolis ract to qualify for the nationals and gained a second to finish atop his division's point standings. In that race, a tire went flat three minutes before it was over.

On another occasion, he smashed the car in practice the day before the race when he hit the wrong pedal and the machine went off the straightaway.

"Dave worked all night to rebuild it. It wasn't a very pretty car, but we won the race," Kampo said.

The mechanic tears the engine apart after every race and will test every nut and bolt thoroughly following the season's finale.

Kampo says he considered an amateur driver but some of the other so-called amateurs actually are professionals because of the sponsorship.

"The other guys aren't too friendly to us. We're young while most of the other drivers are between 35 and 40 years old, have five or six crewmen and more elaborate equipment." Kampo said.

"They don't like to be beaten by these young guys from a hick town in Wisconsin," he said, noting with pride that his auto has defeated McLaren cars.

"Most of the cars are sponsored but we're sponsored only by us," Kampo said. With a good showing at Road Atlanta, he has hopes of attracting backing for next season.

"It also takes experience and Dave and I don't have that experience yet. We like to win but we'll be thrilled to finish in the top half.

One of the benefits of his first place finish in the standings is that the expenses and crew are paid for by the national organization.

Cars will practice this week and their fastest run around the track will determine their starting positions.

Anderson had biggest day in NFL

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals' Donny Anderson had his biggest day Sunday in the National Football League, but he hopes never to have another like it.

Racked with pain from a twisted neck suffered against the Washington Redskins, the 30-year-old running back nonetheless played against the New York Giants.

By the end of the day, the Giants—not Anderson—were suffering.

"Along about Thursday I didn't even know whether I'd be able to play," said Anderson, who ripped the Giants for 130 yards on 18 carries and scored one touchdown.

"My wife Karen gave me some rubdowns and massaged the muscles in my neck," he added. "I slept with a brace for a couple of nights, and that helped."

The performance by Anderson, who spent six seasons with the Green Bay Packers before joining the Cards in 1972, was labeled typical by Coach Don Coryell.

He's a tough old pro," noted Coryell, whose young club whipped the Giants 35-27. "He's been hurt the past two weeks, but he's given us so much help."

A former understudy to Paul Hornung at Green Bay, Anderson says he's shed the description of brusque that was applied to him at Green Bay.

"In Green Bay I was probably thin-skinned," he added, "but that's all in the past. I can only progress by looking to the future."

A more content Anderson played two weeks ago against the Washington Redskins with a badly bruised leg, and last week stunned the Giants with a 54-yard run.

His rushing total at a respectable 318 yards, the former No. 1 draft pick from Texas Tech also has nine touchdowns, matching his career high with the season at only its mid-point.

"Yes, you could say I'm more relaxed and loose," Anderson conceded."Here I feel like I'm part of something for the future that can't miss.

"We just have a lot of young people who are improving," he said. "All in all, I just feel fortunate to be playing here."

Site changed for girls volleyball sectional

LITTLE CHUTE—The site for the girls sectional volleyball tournament Saturday has been switched from Little Chute High School to the Kimberly Senior High School gym.

Competition is slated to get underway at 1:30 p.m. and among the teams entered are Appleton West, Ashwaubenon, Shawano, Kimberly, Kaukauna and Neenah.

Five prep powers win

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Five of Wisconsin's top ranked high school football powers closed their seasons with victories Wednesday night, sharing the spotlight with dazzling individual performances.

Fond du Lac, third ranked among large school teams in this week's Associated Press poll, gained a share of its fourth Fox River Valley Conference title in five years by trouncing Two Rivers 47-0.

Fourth-ranked Whitewater finished 9-0-1, downing Burlington 12-7 in a battle of Southern Lakes divisional winners.

Fifth-ranked Madison East, upset by Janesville Craig last Friday, bounced back to crush sixth ranked Class B school Madison Edgewood 44-14. East, 8-1 overall, shares the Big Eight crown at 5-1 with seventh ranked Madison Memorial, which beat Janesville Parker 34-14.

Sixth-ranked Waukesha, upset by South Milwaukee last week, came back to beat West Allis Hale 21-0. South Milwaukeedefeated Wauwatosa West 20-0 and shares the Milwaukee Suburban title with Waukesha.

Bears on upswing

of the NFC Central Division race, which finds the unbeaten Vikings four full games ahead of the second place Packers, Gibron said, "I say every year that the team that stays healthy is going to win it, and Minnesota has stayed healthy so far."

Could the Vikings, presently 7-0, go through unbeaten?

"I don't think so," Abe rejoined with competitive alaerity. "They've got to play us again."

True to coachly custom, the large one predicted a traditional bloodletting here Sunday afternoon.

"Any time the Bears and Packers get together, it's going to be a good, physical contest," he said. "It's going to be a good football game.

"We've lost eight of our last nine against the Packers, but field goals have been the difference in the last four or five."

PACKER PATTER — The Packers now will be officially without the services of offensive tackle Bill Hayhoe for the balance of the season, having place him on injured reserve Wednesday.

Hayhoe, who suffered a broken leg in the second quarter of Sunday's game at Detroit, will be replaced on the active roster by Ron McBride, a rookie running back from Missouri.

Lions' Biedenbender on All-Olympian both ways

Brillion's Jerome "Shorty" Biedenbender, Mishicot's Dave Dirkman and Denmark's Dennis Duckett made the All-Olympian Conference first team both on offense and defense, conference coaches announced today.

Biedenbender quarterbacked Brillion to first place in the conference. He was also the a first team choice as a defensive back.

Dirkman made the first team at end on defense and as a tackle on offense.

Duckett was named at defensive end and offensive guard.

Other members of the first offensive unit were; ends Dan Fritsch, Wrightstown, Mark Ott, Brillion, and Dan Wisneski, Freedom, tackle Mark Stanelle, Brillion, guard Ken Enneper, Brillion, center Warren Mack, Reedsville, and runningbacks Jim Larson, Valders, Tom Mullins, Brillion, and Kip Hansen, Denmark.

Also making the first defensive team were; tackles Hank Horn, Brillion, and Dave Rahmlow, Mishicot, middle guard Francis Copus, Mishicot, linebackers Fred Wenzel, Brillion, "Butch" Vandenberg, Freedom, Clint Peeters, Mishicot, Jeff Klarkowski, Denmark, Greg Olejniycak, Reedsville, and defensive backs Bob Zima, Mishicot, and Ric Krueger, Reedsville.

Named to the second team offensively were; Mishicot's Dale Gorlanzyk, Jim Haese and Bob Krejcarek, Brillion's Kip Haase and Ron Rank, Wrightstown's Al Peterson, Bill Ehnerd, and George VanderWettering, Denmark's Kevin Larson and Jeff Klarkowski, Freedom's Vandenberg and Jon Turnell, Valders.

The second defensive team included; Brillion's Rod Mikkelson and Enneper, Valders' Jeff Schultz and Turnell, Mike Wapinski, Ed Gagnon and Jim VanGroll, Denmark, Wrightstown's Bruce Theunis, Curt Clancy, and VanderWettering Reedsville's Terry Prochnow and Ed Skwor, Mishicot.

Bobcats seek first road win

GREEN BAY—The Green Bay Bobcats will be looking for their first victory on the road tonight, when they travel to Milwaukee to battle the Admirals. The Bobcats evened their early season won-loss record at 2-2 last Saturday, as they whipped the Sioux City Musketeers, 12-0, in Green Bay.

The Admirals began their first season in the U.S. Hockey League last weekend with an 11-6 los to the Madison Blues.

Bobcat Coach Paul Coppo sees a win tonight as important to the Bobcats, as they face a heavy road schedule during the month of November. Green Bay will be out of town for nine games, while playing only three on home ice in the Brown County Arena.

Coppo says, We've got to start winning on theroad, because the way we stand at the end of this month, could set the pace for the remainder of the season.

Green Bay also will consider tonight's match as a warm-up for an important home game Saturday night against the Thunder Bay Twins.

The Twins are defending league champions and Coppo sees them as probably the Bobcats toughest opponent again this year.

Pop Warner teams to play in Lawrence Bowl

Half-time entertainment at University's final home football game of the season will feature four area Pop Warner League football teams.

They will play four minutes each on offense and four minutes each of defense at half-time of the Lawrence-Beloit game, in Lawrence Bowl.

NOTES & NOTIONS

John L. Paustian

The NFL really socked it to us (five wrong picks and a tie in 13 tries) last week, but collegiate and prep form charts held up well enough to give this forecaster a 74.2 per cent rating (23-8-1). The all-games average was knocked down a trifle to 75.2 per cent (215-71-14). The schedule may be reduced this week, but the task is no easier.

Packers over Bears—This is a shaky choice at best, but I'm inclined to feel that the Packers will come alive before their home fans and become some semblance of the team everyone expected them to be. Needless to say, if the Bays make too many early mistakes on offense, the rugged Bear defense will cut 'em apart.

Michigan State over Wisconsin—The Badgers need this one badly if their professed goal of a winning season is to be realized. But the Spartans, on the basis of the win over Purdue and the home field, may prove too much.

Lawrence over Beloit—The Vikes have a .500 finish in mind and thus cannot afford to lose any more. If they play anywhere near as well as they did last week, they'll make it a long afternoon for Beloit.

St. Mary Central over Menasha—This is the long-awaited start of another intracity rivalry. . . and, of course, these are the most unpredictable of all games. The Zephyrs rate the nod on their superior overall record and their standout defense, but if the Bluejays are as aroused as they were against Neenah, forget about making anybody a favorite.

Other MC games—Monmouth over Ripon, Knox over Cornell, St. Olaf over Grinnell, Coe over Carleton.

Other NFL games—New Orleans over Buffalo, Dallas over Cincinnati, Minnesota over Cleveland, St. Louis over Denver, Baltimore over Houston, San Diego over Kansas City, Atlanta over Los Angeles. Philadelphia over New England, Oakland over Giants, Miami over Jets, Detroit over San Francisco, Pittsburgh over Washington.

Weather forecast

A weather system moving from the West Thursday is forecast to leave a band of showers, snow flurries or rain from northern California and the northern Plains through the southern Plains into the Midwest. Warm weather is expected for the Southeast and up the Atlantic coast to southern New England. Cooler weather is expected elsewhere. (AP Wirephoto map)

Miseries just beginning

It looks like the start of a long, cold winter.

The U.S. Weather Service has predicted mostly cloudy skies tonight with a chance of showers or snow flurries. The low will be in the mid 30s.

Friday should be cloudy with a chance of rain or snow flurries. The high will be near 40. Winds will be variable from 5 to 10 miles per hour tonight, becoming southwesterly 12 to 18 Friday. Precipitation probability is 40 per cent tonight and Friday.

Saturday should be mostly cloudy and cool with a chance of showers. The high will be near 40.

The high temperature in the Appleton area was 44, the low was 36. Precipitation measured .35 inch.

At midmorning, the barometer was rising at 29.67 and winds were westerly at 12. Relative humidity was 70 per cent and the dew point was 34 degrees.

Sunset today at 4:44 p.m. Sunrise tomorrow at 6:31 a.m. Moonset tonight at 9:49 p.m. First Quarter on Nov. 3.

The planet Jupiter is the bright "star" near the moon tonight and tomorrow night and the planet Mars is the slightly brighter "star" high in the southeast as the moon sets tonight.

UWM football in jeopardy

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The future of the football program at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee is in doubt because of budget cuts, Athletic Director Tom Rosandich said Wednesday.

"The governor's slashing of athletic budgets puts football and perhaps other athletics in jeopardy at all schools in the state university system," Rosandich said. "In our case it amounts to a loss of $70,000."

Rosandich said the intramural program will not be affected, and that a reduction or discontinuation of minor or non-profit sports would mean a savings of no more than $40,000.

"And since basketball possibilities are limited because we have no place to play with adequate seating facilities, football faces a doubtful future," Rosandich said.

The UWM athletic director said some of the money needed to continue football might be raised in an appeal to the business community. However, to do this, he said, the school would have to guarantee a five-year football program, which it can't do without funds available.

"We'll have to make a decision, one way or another, in the near future," he said.

Tigerton girls win WIAA volleyball test

WITTENBERG—Tigerton defeated Wittenberg-Birnamwood and Rosholt to capture the WIAA girls regional volleyball championship here recently.

Tigerton rallied from a 6-15 loss in the first game to defeat the Chargers, 15-4 and 15-12. In the finals, Tigerton topped Rosholt, 15-6 and 15-8.

Tigerton qualifies for the WIAA Sectional Tournament at Antigo Saturday.

Antigo qualified by defeating Bowler and Merrill.

Joint Public Notice Issued on:
November 1, 1973
Name and Address of Facility where Discharge Occurs.
Brillion Iron Works
200 Park Avenue
Brillion, Wisconsin 54110
414-756-2121
Receiving Water. Spring Creek, tributary to Lake Michigan
NOTICE The above named applicant has applied for an NPDES Permit to discharge into the designated receiving water and requested State Certification of said discharge. The permit will be issued by either the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency or other NPDES issuing authority.

The Brillion Iron Works in Brillion, Wisconsin, produces 320 tpd of grey iron castings. All intake water is city water, and it is used at a rate of 0.53 MGD. Discharge flows through six pipes to Spring Creek, which eventually flows into Lake Michigan.

All water is once-through, non-contact cooling water. No chemical additives are added to this water.

On the basis of preliminary staff review and application of applicable standards and regulations, the Regional Administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency or other NPDES issuing authority proposes to issue a permit for the discharge subject to certain effluent limitations and special conditions. The State, after review of all the comments and objections, also proposes to issue a certification pursuant to Section 401 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, as amended. State certification will not be necessary if the NPDES Permit issuing authority is granted to the State prior to issuance.

The proposed determination to issue an NPDES Permit is tentative. Interested persons are invited to submit written comments upon the proposed discharge. Comments should be submitted in person or by mail no later than 30 days after the joint public notice of this application is issued. Deliver or mail all comments to:

Mrs. Carolyn Cates
Region V, Permit Branch
U.S. Environmental Protection Agency
1 North Wacker Drive
Chicago, Illinois 60606

The application and joint public notice numbers should appear next to the above address on the envelope and on each page of any submitted comments. All comments received no later than 30 days after the joint public notice is issued will be considered in the formulation of final determinations. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency or other NPDES authority will issue final determinations in a timely manner after the expiration of the public comment period. Copies of all comments and objections received will be transmitted to the State.

The application, proposed permit including proposed effluent limitations, special conditions, comments received and other documents are available for inspection and may be copied at a cost of 20 cents per page at the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency at anytime between 9:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. Copies of the Joint Public Notice are available at no charge at the address shown above for the designated State agency and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Please bring the foregoing to the attention of persons whom you know would be interested in this matter.

Key tapes said not to exist

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said today that by listening to presidential tape recordings made April 14-15, Judge John J. Sirica can hear for himself that the tape ran out before recording a vital conversation with John W. Dean III.

The conversation between President Nixon and former presidential counsel Dean is one of two that the White House says was never recorded. It said so much had gone on in the office earlier in the day that the six-hour reel was filmed. A technical expert said apparently an automatic switching system to a back-up recorder did not work.

J. Fred Buzhardt, lawyer for the President, asked U.S. District Court Judge Sirica to employ electronic experts to determine "that the tapes are complete and have not been tampered with in any form."

Richard Ben Veniste, a Watergate prosecution force lawyer, concurred in Buzhardt's request and the judge asked both the prosecution force and the White House to suggest an expert.

Buzhardt told the court Wednesday that a telephone conversation between the President and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell was made on an instrument not connected to tape records. That reduced availability of nine subpoenaed White House Watergate recordings to seven.

"It was not until several weeks ago when the President considered disclosure that review of tapes by him was commenced," Buzhardt said.

"It was not definitely determined that the two conversations in question were not recorded until late last week," he said.

Buzhardt said he would call witnesses to show that the tape had exceeded its capacity of six hours conversation on Saturday, April 14 and early on Sunday — a time when technicians did not routinely check the recording devices.

"The judge himself can hearing the running out of the tape," Buzhardt said.

Secret Service technician Raymond C. Zumwalt, who installed and serviced the automatic recording equipment in the President's offices, was scheduled to testify before Sirica.

Through all the court fights, high-level statements, and eventual agreement by the President to comply with court orders, the existence of nine tapes sought by Watergate investigatorswas never questioned.

Deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren said at the White House that Nixon had been unaware until last weekend that specific conversations of June 20, 1972, and April 15, 1973, were not recorded.

Buzhardt told Sirica a four-minute conversation on June 20 between Nixon and Mitchell was on a telephone not connected to recorders.

And the April 15 conversation between the President nad Dean was "not redorded due to malfunctioning of the system or inadequacy of the system," Buzhardt told Sirica.

Warren explained that extensive conversations and discussions in Nixon's office on April 14 and 15 — prior to the Dean meeting had been recorded. But, he said, "when this conversation took place the first recorder had run out, filled up and the alternate recorder was not activated until the next day, the 16th."

April 15 was a Sunday. Zumwalt testified Wednesday that the equipment was serviced only on weekdays and that the switching system to a second six-hour reel apparently didn't work. He said it was the only failure he knew of.

The missing recordings include what Mitchell told Nixon in their first reported conversation following the Watergate break-in of June 20, 1972, and of what passed between Nixon and Dean in a meeting in which Dean said Nixon admitted discussing clemency as part of the Watergate cover-up.

The disclosure brought quick reaction from senators of both parties.

"As of this moment, President Nixon has the clear burden of satisfying the American people that he has been speaking the truth. If he fails in this, then we are faced with a political crisis of the most profoundly disturbing

Nixon stood on principle: Rebozo

MIAMI (AP) — President Nixon's fight to keep the White House tapes confidential was a stand on principle and was not made in fear of incrimination, The Miami Herald quotes Nixon's closest friend as saying.

In a copyright story, the Herald in today's editions quotes C.G. "Bebe" Rebozo as saying in a rare personal interview that Nixon was motivated "by the same character and same high principles" which he exhibited in refusing to contest the Illinois vote in his 1960 loss to John F. Kennedy.

"I'm fairly logical and it's hard for me to conceive that a man would sit there talking to people, being the only one that knew that it was being recorded and say something that might incriminate him," Rebozo was quoted as telling Herald reporters.

"I believe again he was standing on principle and he didn't want to not only violate the separation of power but he didn't want to condemn future presidents to the same situation by giving in."

The Herald said Rebozo made his statements in an Wednesday interview, the first granted by Rebozo since Nixon became president in 1969.

Rebozo, a close friend of Nixon's since 1950, said, "He's not the kind of man that you would necessarily warm up to immediately," the Herald reported.

The newspaper said he characterized the President as "a unique person ... a very deep thinker ... dedicated to his country.

"But he is so dedicated to his country and his job that he doesn't have time for the normal small talk that people frequently relax indulging in."

The Herald said Rebozo denied that his Key Biscayne bank had operated a private investment fund on Nixon's behalf and that he also defended his handling of a $100,000 campaign contribution from billionaire Howard Hughes.

He said a 12-week investigation by the Internal Revenue Service had cleared him of any wrongdoing in the contribution, the paper said.

The Herald quoted Rebozo as saying he did not tell Nixon of the Hughes money until almost two years after receiving it in 1969 and did not return the money until "well after" the IRS probe began.

He said if the IRS had not become interested "the money would have been used in the '74 Congressional campaign," the newspaper said.

The Herald said Rebozo complained during the interview that he and his bank have suffered "just unbelievable" harassment by investigators from the Senate Watergate committee.

New attorney general, prosecutor nominated

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today named Sen. William B. Saxbe as attorney general and approved the selection of Leon Jaworski as new Watergate special prosecutor with full independence and safeguards against being fired.

The President promised not to discharge Jaworski, as he had Archibald Cox, without obtaining the consent of House and Senate Democratic and Republican leaders and top members of the two judiciary committees in Congress.

Nixon appeared personally in the White House briefing room to announce his nomination of Saxbe, an Ohio Republican who is not seeking re-election, as successor to Elliot Richardson, who resigned Oct. 20 rather than follow Nixon's orders to fire Cox.

The President, without answering questions, then turned the podium over to acting Atty. Gen. Robert Bork, who announced that Jaworski would become special prosecutor to pursue "the Watergate matter and related subjects."

Bork said that Jaworski has been "promised the full cooperation of the executive branch." Should Jaworski decide that he needs presidential documents, Bork said, "there will be no restrictions placed on his freedom ..."

Bork said Jaworski, a confidant of the late President Lyndon B. Johnson, would have the same broad mandate which had been given Cox. In addition,

Jaworski

Bork said that Nixon has given "his personal assurance" that he will not fire Jaworski without first consulting with the specified congressional leaders and "ascertaining that their consensus is in accord with his proposed action."

The firing of Cox after his refusal to abide by Nixon's orders to drop efforts in court to obtain confidential White House tapes and documents touched off a massive controversy and triggered moves to start impeachment proceedings.

Perjury denied by Kleindienst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former Atty. Gen. Richard S. Kleindienst denies he committed perjury by failing to tell the Senate about President Nixon's order to drop an antitrust suit against ITT and his own threat to resign rather than obey.

Kleindienst repeatedly stated under oath during 1972 hearings before the Senate Judiciary Committee that there was no White House pressure on him to halt the antitrust suits against International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

He acknowledged in a statement Wednesday that Nixon telephoned him on April 19, 1971, and, "without any discussion, ordered me to drop the appeal" of one of the three parallel lawsuits.

He defended his Senate testimony by saying he "was not asked whether I had had any contacts with the White House at the time of this decision, and I did not deny any such contacts."

But an examination of the two volumes of the hearing record shows that Kleindienst was asked repeatedly about the sequence of events on April 19.

And he was asked several times if he had ever had any contacts with the White House concerning the ITT case.

He repeatedly denied any contacts amounting to pressure or directions and conceded only that the matter may have been mentioned in some of the many casual conversations he had with White House officials.

Kleindienst disclosed for the first time that the controversy forced him to the brink of resigning.

By his account, former presidential adviser John D. Ehrlichman called him on April 19 "and stated that the President directed me not to file the appeal in the Grinnell case ... I informed him that we had determined to take that appeal, and that he should so inform the President."

Nixon called moments later,

Ford would act as conciliator

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice-President-designate Gerald R. Ford offered himself today as a conciliator between the White House and Congress as hearings opened on his nomination for the nation's second highest executive job.

At the same time, members of the Senate Rules Committee considering his nomination noted that Ford's selection might prove as important as the choice of a President.

"I believe we all realize that the nominee of today may not only be the vice president of tomorrow but could be the president of next year," Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., said in an opening statement.

In his opening statement Ford said he could serve as "a ready conciliator and calm communicator" between a beleagured Republican President and a Democratic-controlled Congress.

The 60-year-old Michigan congressman said he had supplied complete personal and political financial records because of the great importance of the inquiry.

Committee Chairman Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., said the present crisis in which Ford was nominated by President Nixon to replace the resigned Spiro T. Agnew marked a turning point in the status of the vice presidency.

"I believe the time is over when the presidential nominee of either party can select his running mate as an afterthought," Cannon said. "The committee should consider this no less than the selection of a president of the United States."

But Cannon said while the coomittee wants "the most searching inquiry" it will not get bogged down in argument over Ford's voting record in Congress.

"If this committee were to indulge in an ideological tug of war over Mr. Ford, we would be denying the right of the President to chose whom he wants," Cannon said.

In another opening statement, Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania expressed his "full support and entire confidence of Gerald Ford."

Ford told the committee he is no saint but is qualified for the job and said he could serve as a helping hand in the midst of governmental crisis.

"I believe you and the Congress and the American people must become fully satisfied that I am worthy of your trust and that I am fit to perform the duties of the vice presidency," Ford told senators prepared to question him about his handling of campaign contributions.

"I am not a saint, and I'm sure I have done things I might have done better or differently or not at all," the House GOP leader added. "I have also left undone things that I should have done."

"But I believe and hope that I have been honest with myself and with others, that I have been faithful to my friends and fair to my opponents, and that I have tried my best to make this great government work for the good of all Americans," Ford said.

His eight-page opening statement dealt with general philosophy and his view of the vice presidency, leaving it to the questioning by the nine Rules Committee members to go into financial and other questions raised in the FBI probe of Ford.

Nixon has Mideast foes in same city for one day

WASHINGTON (AP) — For today, at least, President Nixon seemed to have the Egyptians and Israelis where he wanted them — in the same city talking about a Middle East settlement.

However, despite their presence here at the same time, Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir and Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy did not come to Washington to talk to each other. Instead, they came separately to plead their own special interests and to obtain as much support as possible from Nixon for positions that appear to be in direct conflict.

Before her breakfast meeting today with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and a noon session with the President, Mrs. Meir told reporters that problems and questions had arisen out of her country's relationship with the United States.

She asked to talk with the President and Kissinger to "seek answers and clarifications," Mrs. Meir said upon her arrival Wednesday afternoon.

She described as "an oversimplification" reports Israel had been subjected to undue pressure from the United States concerning cease-fire lines.

Meanwhile, in Tel Aviv Wednesday, an Israeli military command spokesman said dozens of trucks carried emergency supplies for the Egyptian 3rd Army through Israeli Suez Canal lines.

A relief operation for the 20,000 men of the encircled military force was in its third day on the southern end of the waterway. The Israeli military spokesman said the cargoes of about half of a 125-truck convoy had been shipped to the east bank of the canal.

In Cairo, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat continued to refuse to exchange Israeli war prisoners until Israel pulled back to the Oct. 22 cease-fire lines established by the U.N. Middle East truce.

He also said that, once the Israelis withdraw, Egypt would be willing to "start immediately with peace talks" in an international peace conference under U.N. sponsorship.

U.S. officials privately acknowledged they would prefer an Israeli pullback and Mrs. Meir didn't deny being aware of the American position.

In fact, some Israeli sources said one of the goals of her visit is to convince Nixon not to back her government against the wall on the issue.

They said the United States should realize Israel is a democracy and subject to popular pressures, particularly on matters involving prisoner exchanges and territorial gains.

Mrs. Meir also was expected to seek assurances that the United States, in its effort to appear even-handed, is not wavering on its position that outside powers should not impose a settlement on the Middle East.

Egypt continues to insist publicly that it will not negotiate directly with Israel, although it would attend an international conference once the Israelis withdrew to the Oct. 22 lines.

Privately, there are indications Egypt may be more flexible. U.S. officials said they were pleasantly surprised by Fahmy and predicted important progress within weeks.

In fact, it was Fahmy's visit and the reports of his friendly reception that caused Mrs. Meir to suddenly come to Washington.

She is said to have felt it was time to re-establish the image of her close personal relationship with Nixon.

Mrs. Meir will stay in the United States until Saturday, taking advantage of the opportunity to talk with influential businessmen and members of Congress.

U.S. sources agreed with suggestions that these contacts will result in public and private commitments of support.

Trick or treater dies in freak accident

NEW YORK (AP) — A 12-year-old trick or treater died in what police termed a freak accident after the youth and his friends were accosted by a man who warned them not to come to his apartment.

Police said the boy, Kevin Frink, was nearly decapitated Wednesday night when he accidentally stuck his head through an already broken glass window in an elevator door during a scuffle with James Logan, 22.

Logan is a resident of the same apartment building where the dead youth lived.

Frink was dead on arrival at St. Lukes Hospital.

Kasten eyes Lucey job

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — State Sen. Robert Kasten, R-Brown Deer, said Wednesday he would seek the GOP nomination for governor next year if he can obtain sufficient financial support.

Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, a Democrat, can be defeated, Kasten told the Milwaukee Sentinel, and "a person like myself would be an excellent candidate."

He said he would make an official announcement next spring if he uncovers enough support for his candidacy.

Kasten, 31, said he is certain he will run for some statewide office, perhaps state treasurer. But he said he would prefer to run for governor.

Republican Atty. Gen. Robert Warren has been generally considered the leading GOP candidate to oppose Lucey. But it has been reported that Warren could be in line for appointment to a U.S. District Court judgeship.

proportions," said James L. Buckley, Con.-R-N.Y.

Republican Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon said the revelation that "the very tapes that have been fought over to the brink of a constitutional confrontation" don't exist "dramatically escalates the problem of this administration's credibility."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., called it incredible and said, "Surely, the President and his counsel must have known the situation on these tapes during all of the discussions with the court and with the Senate committee. The public is fed up with this sort of business."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said, "I find it astonishing."

Archibald Cox, who was ousted as special prosecutor for rejecting a presidential compromise offer concerning the tapes, said he believes the White House representatives he dealt with knew nothing about the condition of the tapes.

He said he learned of problems with the April 15 recording shortly before he was fired.

In a court memorandum in support of his subpoena for the recordings, Cox had said the tape of June 20 Mitchell conversation "will either tend to confirm Mitchell's version" that he told the President only five men were involved "or show a more candid report."

If Dean's version of the April 15 meeting was true and accurate, the memorandum had said "this testimony would indicate an important dimension to the cover-up conspiracy. If false and misleading, a perjurious injustice has been done for which the grand jury can return an indictment."

Richard Ben Veniste, a prosecution force lawyer who questioned Zumwalt, said he was attempting "to explore all the circumstances surrounding the fact that these tapes according to the White It also was the first chance for a prosecution force lawyer to get detailed testimony of the taping operation. Zumwalt said under questioning that the initial tapes were made Feb. 16, 1971, and that the equipment was dismantled July 18 this year.

saying: "Mr. Jaworski is not coming on with any limitations on his freedom of action."

But the bearded former Yale professor who assumed the role as acting attorney general on Oct. 20 and fired Cox as his first act said he does not expect continued court battles over access to White House tapes and documents.

"I anticipate reasonableness on both sides," he said.

As for the other staff of investigators and prosecutors that Cox had formed, Bork indicated he believed Jaworski would retain Cox's appointees.

"I stated to him that I thought that staff was indispensable to the rapid ... prosecution of these cases," Bork said. "He fully agreed."

He said it will be up to Jaworski to decide whether to pursue such investigations as the reported probe of presidential friend C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo's handling of a $100,000 campaign contribution from billionaire Howard Hughes.

Sources said Wednesday night that the administration had settled on Jaworski and Saxbe.

In recent days, Saxbe had made clear he wanted the cabinet job — a desire that both he and Nixon mentioned today.

In his brief comments, Nixon said he expected "overwhelming approval" by the Senate of his nomination of Saxbe.

Referring to Saxbe's recently announced decision to forsake a re-election campaign and return to Ohio, Nixon said: "He wanted to practice law and I have given him the opportunity ... to head the largest law firm in America."

Armstrong making final appearance in court

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Karleton Armstrong was to make his final scheduled appearance in state court today, facing up to 95 years in prison for the 1970 bombing of the University of Wisconsin's Sterling Hall and related incidents.

It was more likely that Armstrong, 27, would be sentenced to 25 years or less, making him eligible for parole in a maximum of five years.

Pronouncing sentence will be Dane County Circuit Court Judge William Sachtjen. He spent last weekend weighing the case against the former UW student after hearing two weeks of defense testimony on why Armstrong committed the bombing.

Armstrong pleaded guilty to second degree murder for the death of a researcher working in the building, four counts of arson and count of illegally transporting explosives.

He faced a maximum of 50 years on the arson charges, 25 years for murder and 10 years for the explosives count.

The State of Wisconsin and Dane County recommended a total sentence of 25 years.

Armstrong still faces sentencing on federal charges related to the bombing.

In the weeks prior to the sentencing, Sachtjen was silent on whether or not he had been affected by witnesses such as Pentagon Papers co-defendant Anthony Russo and antiwar activist Philip Berrigan, or by a defense highlighted by Chicago 7 attorney William Kunstler of New York.

He described the pre-sentence testimony as "interesting." Beyond that Sachtjen, a mild-mannered man who served as an Army officer during World War II, said nothing.

repeated the order, and Kleindienst then "sent word to the President that, if he persisted in that direction, I would be compelled to submit my resignation."

April 19 was the deadline for the government to notify the Supreme Court of its intention to appeal a lower court decision against the government's challenge of ITT's acquisition of the Grinnell Corp.

Kleindienst said he then asked the high court for a 30-day extension "to enable the President to consider my position" and Nixon subsequently "changed his mind."

At the time that Nixon ordered Kleindienst not to appeal the Grinnell decision, the Justice Department had filed suits challenging ITT's acquisition of the Canteen Corp. and the Hartford Fire Insurance Co. However, there had been no court decision in either of those cases.

The Justice Department filed the appeal, but then negotiated an out-of-court settlement requiring ITT to divest itself of three subsidiaries and part of a fourth but allowing it to keep the profitable Hartford Fire Insurance Co.

The controversy has focused on allegations that the deal was struck in return for ITT's pledge of political funds.

The Special Watergate prosecution force is investigating whether perjury was committed during the Judiciary Committee hearings in March and April of 1972.

Leading heart expert, Dr. White, dead at 87

BOSTON (AP) — Paul Dudley White was determined as a youth not to become a doctor. But he changed his mind and began a 60-year career that would make him one of the world's leading heart experts.

White, who died Wednesday at 87 of complications related to a recent stroke, was the mentor and friend of heart specialists the world over.

A pioneer in heart research, he was a teacher, worldwide lecturer and a leading exponent of moderation in lifestyle and exercise as means of preventing or delaying heart and blood vessel problems.

When President Dwight D. Eisenhower suffered a heart attack in

White

1955, White was named Eisenhower's chief medical consultant.

His treatment of Eisenhower brought the thin, grey-mustached doctor to the attention of the public. He used this public recognition as a platform from which to speak about preventive heart care and the need for public financing of medical research.

White served as president of the American Medical Association and was a founder and president of the American Heart Association and the International Association of Cardiology.

"In the annals of medicine, Dr. Paul Dudley White will be remembered as a man who not only revolutionized the treatment of heart disease, but also educated millions of Americans on ways to prevent heart attacks," President Nixon said Wednesday night.

"His services in this field were great, and, taken by themselves, would justify his place in history."

White was born June 6, 1886, in Boston. He was graduated from Harvard Medical School in 1911. He focused on cardiology when many considered that budding field too narrow for an entire career.

His research made him one of the first to recognize that moderation in diet and exercise were beneficial for good heart care. He also noted that even after a heart attack, a moderate regimen in exercise and diet could help prevent a short or invalid life.

The soft-spoken doctor also was a family man, a skier, a mountain climber, bicyclist, author and world traveler on medical missions.

He maintained his hectic pace to almost the end of his life. In 1971 he became one of the first American physicians to visit mainland China following the thaw in U.S.-Chinese relations.

Claims total $2.5 million in park injury

Claims totaling $2.5 million have been filed against Outagamie County as the result of a swimming accident at the Plamann Park lake last summer which left an Appleton youth paralyzed from the neck down.

The claims were filed by 17-year-old Timothy Brinkman, who was injured in the accident, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Brinkman, 2109 N. Erb St., Appleton.

Timothy Brinkman is seeking $2 million in damages and his parents are asking $250,000 each.

Brinkman, who would have been a senior at Appleton High School-West this year, was injured July 12. He was found floating face down in the water by Michaeld VanSelow, a lifeguard.

After spending nearly two months at St. Elizabeth Hospital, he was transferred to Sacred Heart Hospital in Milwaukee for rehabilitation. He is still at Sacred Heart.

The claim by Timothy Brinkman charges that there were carelessness, recklessness and negligence on the part of the county "in failing to construct a swimming area safe for the users" and that the county "failed to provide adequate supervision and failed to

New London beer bars seek liquor

NEW LONDON — Applications for liquor licenaes from the owners of two establishments currently holding beer licenses are scheduled to be brought before the City Council when it meets at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The businesses, Sommer's Place and Gerald's, have applied for the licenses under a state law that allows municipalities the authority to issue licenses to beer bars since the age of majority was changed.

The applications had been scheduled for council action previously and were held off. Conflicting legal opinions will be presented by City Atty. James Lindgren, whom the council asked to study the state law.

Lindgren has mentioned that aldermen may grant the licenses, but are not required to.

But opinions he received from the League of Wisconsin Municipalities and an investigator for the state Department of Justice differ from his opinion.

Lindgren told the council previously that personal interviews with lawmakers and letters from state senators on the committee who drafted the bill support his opinion. They contend that the law was designed to be flexible, allowing municipalities the power to grant or deny the licenses on the applicant's merit, without having to meet special requirements.

Although the proposal wasn't discussed by the judicial-legislative committee when it met this week, an ordinance that would change the composition of the personnel committee may be introduced by Lindgren.

He told aldermen at the last meeting "Nothing has become more clear to me than that we have too many people on the negotiating committee. We need just two people" to negotiate police and street department salaries.

He said the city attorney and "someone connected with finance," such as the city clerk-treasurer or the finance committee chairman, could negotiate instead of having the entire six-member committee sit in on contract talks. He also said that department heads would sit in on meetings, but not negotiate.

The personnel committee presently includes the attorney, who chairs the group, the finance chairman, the chairman of the board of public works, the director of public works, the manager of New London Utilities and a representative of the police and fire commission.

The special council committee studying reassessment will also ask aldermen to send a letter to the Waupaca County Board, and its New London representatives, asking for a county stand on the proposed total reassessment.

The committee parently favors reassessment, but a recently passed state law may postpone the project. The law will provide up to 75 per cent aids to counties conducting a total reassessment, if 60 per cent of that county's population is included in the project.

The committee is asking the county for assurance that if the city reassesses in 1974, it won't be taxed for a countywide reassessment in 1975 or '76. Waupaca and Clintonville, two of the larger cities in the county, reportedly have completed reassessment programs within the past few years.

Former students say thanks to Mr. Warner

BY DAVE WEITZ
Post-Crescent staff writer

A lot of people said thanks Wednesday to soft-spoken Leonard Warner, who gently has changed their lives and agriculture in the Fox Valley. He was "Mr. Warner," to some, "Len," to most and "Pop," to a few.

Some were bosses, some businessmen and most farmers. In a way all of them had been students in Len's classroom — whether on the farm or over a cup of coffee. For 43 years Len's been teaching agriculture.

He graduated in 1931 from college at River Falls and for the next three years taught at Roberts, Wis.

In 1934 he came to Marion and started an agriculture class. Next, in 1937, he moved to New London and set up an agriculture class and in 1947 Len started the first veterans training program at Appleton Technical Institute. There were 22 farmers in that first class. Now there are 1,350 enrolled in the expanded Fox Valley Technical Institute.

And some of the Institute students, such as Marvin Hintz, Marion, started out with Len as an agriculture teacher in high school.

Marvin was in a group of 66 students that Len loaded on a cattle truck back then for a week-long camping trip to tour farm businesses and stockyards at St. Paul and Minneapolis.

George Roberts, Denmark, who now is a vocational agriculture instructor started out in farm classes in 1931 with a greenhorn teacher — Len.

"After my sophomore year in high school I wanted to go up and do what Mr. Warner did... teach agriculture'" Roberts told the crowd of more than 300.

So like Len he went to River Falls college and eventually came to New London to practice teach with Len as supervisor. Now Roberts is teaching high school students at Denmark — just as Len once did in Roberts.

Allen Bohl, route 1, Hortonville, calls Len Pop. "My father died when I was young and I didn't have anywhere to turn," he explained. Allen turned to Len and Len helped.

So for years when a major decision was to be made on the Bohl farm Len's phone would ring. "He always had the answer or he knew where to find them."

For William Sirek, director of Fox Valley Technical Institute, Len was a coordinator of farm programs that fought for teachers and offices and more programs until today the institute has seven full-time instructors with programs reaching into parts of eight counties.

For Eugene Lehrmann, director of the state board of vocational technical and adult education, Len is a teacher. In the 43 years he's worked, said Lehrmann, Len has lived the kind of life that national educators now are trying to develop.

Lehrmann called him "a person that exemplifies what vocational education ought to be about."

Bill DiVall, Winneconne, one of the FVTI farm instructors, put it simply. There is no vocational agriculture instructor in Wisconsin "that is using an idea, a form, a philosophy that did not come from Len Warner."

It's been a big change from starting out at Marion where part of his job was to build tables and benches for students during the day and go out to recruit farm students to the city school in evenings.

He was a recruiter at New London, too. School officials there bluntly informed Len that they wanted to get country students in the school and the tuition that would come with them. So Len drove to within six miles of Appleton on a door-to-door selling campaign. Hortonville didn't have an agriculture program and Len's recruitment drive drew enough farm boys from the area so the present New London school district forms a semi-circle around the Hortonville school district.

Finally, after the praise and speeches were over Wednesday, Len stood up and looked at that class of 300.

He said thanks. Then the soft-spoken man refused to take credit for the job. Instead he thanked the "seven best" farm instructors in the state that are in the FVTI. Most of all he thanked his wife, Ila. It was she, he said, who had answered up to 50 calls per day on the home telephone and didn't complain when he was gone from the family to teach.

The family was there, too: a brother David, of Clear Lake, a sister and brother-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Ruben Carlson, St. Paul; his daughter, Janet, Chicago, and daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Jack Weinhold, Pittsburgh were there with a daughter and son-in law, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Freeman, Neenah.

Len told his friends about plans to retire at the end of the year and of the upcoming trip to Florida. Together they talked about old times. And they simply said "thanks."

Kimberly man's death blamed on driver error

Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H. Kemps ruled Wednesday that the Sept. 16 traffic death of a Kimberly man was due to the other driver's failure to yield right-of-way at the intersection of State 55 and Maloney Road north of Kaukauna.

Kemps returned his verdict at the completion of the inquest into the death of Kenneth Bosmans, 19. The district attorney's office, which assisted in the inquest, has the option of bringing the traffic charge against David Mielke, 18, 400 Whitney St., Kaukauna.

Mielke, whose car was pulling into the intersection in the westbound lane of Maloney when it was struck by motorcycles driven by Bosmans and Mark Coffey, was scheduled to testify Wednesday, but on the advice of his attorney, Public Defender John Leonard, Mielke declined to answer any questions.

Kemps ruled that Bosmans died at the scene from a severed brain stem. Coffey, 19, of Kaukauna, and Kathy Zehren, 17, of Neenah, who was riding on Bosmans' cycle, were injured, as was Mielke.

Witnesses testified that the two cycles struck the driver's side of Mielke's auto, and that neither driver applied his brakes or swerved to avoid the collision. The accident took place in clear weather about 7:10 p.m.

Several witnesses testified that Bosmans, Coffey and Miss Zehren were among a group of 13 or more cyclists driving north to a tavern at Freedom. The group had been drinking at several other taverns between High Cliff and Little Chute prior to the accident.

Bloodmobile will visit New London

NEW LONDON —A quota of 105 pints of blood, six pints of O negative blood and donations of blood for a local woman are needed when the Red Cross Bloodmobile visits here Monday.

The unit will be at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Clubhouse on Division St. from 1-6 p.m.

The O negative blood is needed for a 56-year-old Lake Geneva man scheduled for heart surgery. Mrs. Gerald Schoenrock of New London, who recently had heart surgery at Appleton Memorial Hospital, needs blood donations on her behalf.

The bloodmobile serves New London and the Towns of Mukwa, Caledonia, and Lebanon.

Chairmen for the Monday visit include Mrs. John Kraske, nurses; Mrs. Emil Gehrke, volunteers; Mrs. Jerome Burkot, poster distribution; and James Weber and the Boys Scouts, loading and unloading the truck.

Unified Board clarifies its role

BY FERN SMITH
Post-Crescent staff writer

CLINTONVILLE — Moving along to assume its responsibilities and clarify its role, the Unified Board of Shawano and Waupaca counties acted Wednesday to gather under its umbrella of unified health services existing agencies to provide services to the mentally ill, the mentally retarded and the alcoholic and drug abuser.

Program director Paul Neja reviewed what happened when the two counties formed the Unified Board. "This board automatically took over the Wolf River Mental Health Board, which was appointed by the Shawano and Waupaca County boards," he said.

"The two day care boards appointed by the two counties also automatically became a part of the Unified Board."

Letters of intent from the Shawano Association for Retarded Children and the Waupaca County Association for Retarded Children were read by Woodrow Smith, chairman of the Unified Board. Both associations advised that their boards had voted to relinquish control of their day care services and that action was unanimously approved by the Unified Board.

By this action, the services now provided by Lakeland Center, Shawano, will be an intregal part of Unified Health Services, effective Jan. 1, 1974. The adult day care centers in Clintonville and New London and the nursery school day care centers in Clintonville and Waupaca, will be operated by the Unified Health Services beginning Jan. 1, 1974.

The existing agency in the third disabilities area, alchoholism and drug abuse, is the Waupaca County Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Resources Council, a private agency. The board of directors of this agency elected to remain a private agency in 1974, contracting its services to the Unified Health Services and declaring its full cooperation for this period.

Two reasons were given for the agency's decision: One, the agency anticipates a second year of federal funding for its operation, and it choses to continue the program set forth in applying for the grant; and, secondly, the problems this agency deals with calls for instant response in crisis situations, and it deems it advisable to keep its voluntary counseling structure intact.

In response to a groundswell of opposition to 100 per cent funding by the state in 1975 for Unified Board programs, which is becoming evident in the Division of Mental Health, the County Boards Association, the County Hospitals Association, mental disability boards and mental health clinics, the Unified board declared itself.

The major concern about 100 per cent funding in 1975, among the aforementioned groups, is that 100 per cent state funding will lead to 100 per cent control. Some groups have requested that the state grant be reduced to 90 per cent, with 10 per cent local funding.

The Unified Board of Shawano and Waupaca counties, by resolution, proposed that 1975 funding be 75 per cent state and 25 per cent county.

The Shawano and Waupaca county boards have reviewed the Unified Health Services 1974 budget, which totals $725,243 and under the 60-40 funding for 1974, this will cost each of the counties $112,004.

"This budget provides a total of $364,004 for mental health services; $218,563 for developmental disabilities; $81,126 for alcoholism and other drug abuse (and most of this is new); plus $61,550 for administration," Smith said.

"It came as a surprise to many county supervisors that we were paying for these services last year, and it was costing the counties more money," he added. "Last year, Shawano County paid $167,000 and Waupaca County paid $169,000 for their share of these services. So, we are getting more and

Menasha man named top teacher

FOREST JUNCTION — William Kraemer, route 1, Menasha, sixth grade teacher in the Forest Junction Elementary School, has been named Brillion's "Teacher of the Year." His nomination will be entered in the state contest.

Kraemer is a native of Menasha and graduate of St. Mary High School. He attended University of Wisconsin Whitewater, Outagamie County Teacher's College and the University of Northern Colorado before getting his bachelor's degree in upper elementary education from the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh.

Kraemer has had eight years of teaching experience, seven years in the Brillion School system and one year at Longmont, Colo.

His achievements include organizing junior and senior high school special education programs for one year. He has been principal at Forest Junction for two years and junior high school basketball coach for five years. He is president-elect of the Brillion Education Association and is working towards his master's degree in special education at the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh.

Kraemer is an artist and has a hobby farm one mile south of Sherwood on State 55. He plays basketball and is a football fan.

The Kraemers have three children and one foster son.

Manawa sets hearing on 1974 municipal spending of $130,452

MANAWA — A public hearing on the city's proposed 1974 spending of $130,452 for municipal government purposes has been called for 8 p.m. Nov. 18 at Sturm Public Library.

The figure proposed for 1974 is an increase of 18.8 per cent over the $109,724 expected to be the total spending in the current year. Officials estimate 1974 receipts at $90,875, up 22.9 per cent from the total of $73,900 expected for 1973.

A sum of $39,577 would be left to be raised through local property tax. That, coupled with as yet undetermined amounts of Little Wolf Joint School District No. 7, county, state and vocational school taxes will compose the 1974 tax levy to be faced by owners of property within the city.

Expenses for general government in the proposed budget amount to $16,190, compared with $12,601 estimated for 1973. The increase is in council salaries and in city hall expenses, estimated at $5,000.

Other expenses of general government include salaries of the clerk, assessor, elections, insurance, board of review and legal proceedings.

Budgeted for protection of persons and property is $33,880, compared with an estimated $29,632 for 1973. In this category are expenses of the police and fire departments and fire hydrant rental. Officials are asking $25,700 for the police and fire departments, an increase of 19.3 per cent over the $21,532 estimated for 1973. The 1973 estimate is 16.4 per cent more than actual 1972 expenditures of $18,491 for those two departments.

Health and sanitation amounts to $3,950, compared with the 1973 expenses of $3,400. Health and pest control amount to $250, with $3,700 budgeted for the city's landfill site.

Highway expenses of $38,300 are up 16.6 per cent from $32,832, with $31,700 budgeted for roads and streets and $6,800 for street lights. Education and recreation is estimated at $7,350, with $3,250 set for the public library and $4,100 for parks and recreation. This is an increase over 1973's $5,899. Street lighting and relief is $1,000 compared to 1973's estimate of $754.

In the unclassified section, costs for 1974 are estimated at $29,863, compared with $24,604 for 1973. Of this, $13,288 is for the principal and interest on the water well loan; $4,950 for the doctor's clinic building; $10,000 for social security and retirement funds and miscellaneous expenses of $1,625.

A summary of the 1974 budget proposal is open for public inspection at the home of City Clerk H. L. Crane, 539 Depot St. The City Council will meet tonight to review the proposed budget.

Chicago cyclist is arrested

BERLIN—A member of a Chicago motorcycle gang involved in an assault of two teen-age Appleton girls last February was arrested after a tavern fight here early Tuesday, eight days after a judge in Outagamie County ordered him to stay out of Wisconsin for the five years of his probation.

Outagamie authorities said probation revocation proceedings might be started against Robert E. Freeman, 37 of Chicago, who pleased innocent in Green Lake County Court Tuesday to an assault charge brought by Berlin police.

Arrested with Freeman was Thomas D. Jacobson, 20, Menasha, who pleaded innocent Wednesday to charges of conduct endangering human life, pointing a firearm at another person and disorderly conduct.

Both men are represented by Milwaukee attorney Allen Eisenberg, who was counsel for several of the 13 members of the Chicago-based D.C. Eagles who were charged with 121 counts related to the Feb. 25 rapes of two Appleton girls. Trial for Freeman and Jacobson was set for Jan. 4, according to Robert Gonyo, Green Lake County district attorney.

Freeman, who at first insisted to police he was Louis F. Russell, posted a $200 bond but then was ordered held without bond by an Appleton probation and parole agent.

Jacobson was released on a $1,000 bond which Green Lake County authorities said was posted by James Bloy of Appleton, one of the 13 defendants charged with rape in Appleton.

Freeman and Jacobson were arrested after a tavern fight that sent a customer to the hospital about 12:30 a.m. Tuesday, Gonyo said.

Freeman is charged with beating the man and Jacobson, with pulling a small handgun when other customers attempted to assist. Police could not find the gun but Gonyo said several witnesses saw the weapon.

Under terms of a plea bargain worked out between the Outagamie County district attorney's office and defense lawyers Oct. 22, 114 of the 121 charges against 12 of the D.C. Eagles were dropped.

Five men, including Freeman, pleaded guilty to one count each of having sexual intercourse with a minor and two men pleaded guilty to one count each of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Freeman and the four others convicted on the felony charges were each fined $1,000 and placed on five years' probation after Circuit Court Judge Robert Pfiffner of Chippewa Falls stayed five-year prison terms.

Freeman and two other Chicago defendants were ordered to stay out of Wisconsin during the terms of their probation.

Courts

WAUPACA — Charges of concealing and removing or transferring mortgage property against Jerome Hungerford, route 2, Manawa, were dismissed Tuesday during a preliminary hearing in County Court Branch 2.

Judge Nathan Wiese acted on the motion to dismiss by defense counsel Ralph M. Lauer because in previous civil action relating to the case it was found that the complaining witness, M. G. Hales, president of the Farmers State Bank, Manawa, had consented to the course of action taken by the defendant.

Hungerford had been accused of removing livestock which had been given as security on a loan from the Manawa Bank and selling livestock valued at $3,950 to Equity Livestock Sales Association, Bonduel, and livestock valued at $19,380 to Midwest Livestock Producers of Marion and Lomira.

He also complained that he suffered permanent injuries that "will cause him pain and suffering in the future and will impair his ability to earn a living; that he sustaimed severe shock to his nervous system and suffered great pain and mental anguish."

In the companion claim filed by Timothy's father, Orville Brinkman cited the resulting cost of medical aid and charged he was "deprived of his son's aid, comfort, society and companionship." The claim filed by his mother also claimed loss of her son's "aid, comfort, society and companionship."

County Corp. Counsel William Schuh said the claims will be turned over to the county's insurance carrier for investigation.

saving money."

After the budget is approved by both the county boards, it will go to the State Division of Mental Hygiene for final approval.

The budget must be accompanied by the Unified Health Services program for 1974. This is now under study and will be developed by the planning committee when it meets on Nov. 6 at the Wolf River Mental Health Clinic, Shawano. Dr. Patricia Stuff is chairman and committee members include John Kafka, Del Wiley, Mrs. Virginia Harvey, Otto Rusch and Mrs. Gordon Meikeljohn.

Neja pressed again for the hiring of three coordinators in the three disabilities areas and he came in with some candidates for each post. The coordinators' primary function will be to see that the needed services within the health servises are available and that the persons in need of these services receive them, he explained.

The personnel committee, chaired by Lloyd Matheson, with Fred Krueger, George Grill and Woodrow Smith made its recommendations.

These were tabled after considerable discussion by members of the Unified Board and the committee was asked to meet and establish a salary range for each position.

The Unified Board will meet on Nov. 28 at the Clintonville Community Hospital to consider the 1974 program and the hiring of the three coordinators.

VFW dinner will be Nov. 11

NEW LONDON — Learman-Schaller Post and Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will sponsor their annual Veterans Day dinner starting at 5 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 11, at the VFW Clubhouse on Division St.

Casey Jones, volunteer coordinator at fhe Grand Army Home at King, will speak. He served in the Navy during World War II, is a member of the VFW and is a former commander of the American Legion.

Lt. Col. Harry Herres, retired, of Fond du Lac, will be the master of ceremonies, andR the ev. Lambert Scanlon of St. Patrick Catholic Church in Lebanon will give the prayers.

The evening's program will also include a dinner with dancing to follow.

Tickets for the program are available this week from any post or auxiliary member. Mrs. Arthur Lasch, ticket chairman, said that reservations should be made in advance, and the public is invited to attend.

This year marks the 75th anniversary of the VFW.

Dates for leaf pick-up listed for New London

NEW LONDON — The city's annual leaf pick up will be on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays, Nov. 5-7, 12-14, and 19-21.

The street department has asked residents to put their leaf piles next to the curb, and stressed that citizens are not supposed to put the piles in the street or gutter.

After Nov. 21, residents will be responsible for the disposal of their own leaves.

Police & fire beat

NEW LONDON —Patrick Kessler, 17, of 615 Broad St., New London, complained of a sore neck after the car he was riding in was involved in a two-car accident at 4:15 p.m. Tuesday at the intersection of Wyman Street and Beacon Avenue.

Police said a car driven by Maxine Carew, 43, of 1209 Mill St., was facing west on Beacon and had stopped for a stop sign, but then pulled out from the stop sign and was struck by a southbound car driven by Michael Ritchie, 18, of route 3. Kessler was a passenger in the Ritchie car, which did not have a stop sign when headed south on Wyman.

CLINTONVILLE — The volunteer rescue squad was called about 9:40 p.m. Tuesday to the scene of a one-car accident a mile north of Embarrass on State 22 in Shawano County.

The emergency unit transported Joyce Koelbl, Argonne, to the Clintonville Community Hospital for treatment of injuries.

CLINTONVILLE —Two breaking and entering incidents have been reported by the police department.

Farm Equipment Sales and Clintonville Lumber and Supply were both entered in the early evening Monday. Entry was gained by going through rear windows.

Nothing has been reported missing and the investigation is being continued.

NEW LONDON — Esther Lange, 65, route 1, Manawa, complained of a sore back and a cut right hand after the car she was riding in was struck from behind on N. Water St., near Lincoln St., at 7 a.m. Tuesday.

Police said a car driven by Lila Vaughan, 53, 230 Euclid Ave., Manawa, was parking on N. Water, when a car driven by William Brasch, 18, route 2, New London, didn't see it and hit the Vaughan auto in the rear.

Opinion

THE Post-Crescent

The Ford nomination

Rep. David Obey of Wausau got some wires crossed in a Wisconsin speech the other day dealing with the nomination of Rep. Gerald Ford to be vice president.

Obey said Ford should be confirmed by Congress because it would be wrong for the presidency to pass to Speaker Carl Albert and thus have the Democrats "win through tragedy what it lost last November — namely, the presidential election." But Obey went on to say that approval of the Ford nomination should be part of a package agreement including the resignation of President Nixon.

There has been too much of this kind of talk, which can be classified as an extension of the Watergate mentality and certainly a violation of the way the 25th Amendment is supposed to work. The Washington Post, hardly a spokesman for the welfare of the Republican party, put it this way in a recent editorial.

"In political terms, the last thing that the country wants or needs is any more distress, disunity and narrow partisanship. All this would certainly result from any attempt to hold the nomination of Mr. Ford as hostage, either to Mr. Nixon's future performance or in anticipation of the President's impeachment.

"Moreover, it would be profoundly wrong —and probably self-defeating as well — to try to turn impeachment into a congressional coup d'etat which would install a Democrat in the White House. That would be precisely the sort of cynical exploitative abuse of power which the American people are now acting so strongly against."

And that is precisely right. The 25th Amendment was added to the Constitution in 1965 to fill a void. It assures that there will always be a vice president. It has also a grim side, procedure for the vice president to take over if a president is physically unable to serve. This is always a possibility quite apart from what has been lumped together under the heading of Watergate.

Congress should act swiftly on the Ford nomination on its own merits. That is the intent of the 25th Amendment.

The meaning of impeachment

With all the talk of impeachment going on these days, a definition of the term and of the process is in order.

To impeach is "to charge with malfeasance in office before a proper tribunal."

In the case of the President of the United States, the Constitution gives to the House of Representatives "the sole power of impeachment." The Senate "shall have the sole power to try all impeachments," and "no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present." Adoption of impeachment charges, however, is by a simple majority in the House.

Framers of the Constitution borrowed the idea of impeachment from England where the practice of the adoption of charges against a public official by a legislative body was started in the Fourteenth Century.

Civil officers of the United States Government are subject to impeachment, but it was held early by the courts that legislators are not subject.

The most famous impeachment in U.S. history was that of President Andrew Johnson in 1868. The Senate failed to convict and he finished out his term of office. All told there have been 12 federal impeachments, mostly judges, four of whom were convicted.

Private school aids

Recent legislative developments at Madison strongly suggest that the determined effort made in recent legislative terms to enact laws for direct state subsidies of parochial and other non-public schools has been abandoned. Not only has the legislature shown a reluctance to act on such controversial matters, but a succession of judicial decisions assures that any such act that would be enacted in Wisconsin would be immediately subject to protracted legal challenge.

One of the major organizations seeking some form of support for the non-public educational enterprise, troubled as it is with increasing financing problems, has now brought in a far more modest plan that would in effect provide state financing for the loan of textbooks to all public and private school children who desire them.

It has been estimated that such an arrangement can be financed at a cost of $10 per pupil, and perhaps less, since the textbooks would be loaned to the pupils by the district and presumably would be used by a succession of classes in the several grades Thus the cost to the state treasury would be modest, considering the enormous state school aid budget as a whole and the flourishing level of state tax revenues. As a practical matter, the financing of such textbook lending to pupils in all schools, without distinction as to their proprietorship, may well have the effect of lessening, or even eliminating, the long-standing resistance of the public school lobby in Madison to state assistance to the non-public schools.

The new plan is presented late in the legislative session, but that won't necessarily impair its prospects. The assistance program if authorized cannot become effective until the fall of 1974 and thus the legislature at its next sitting in January can review the issue as thoroughly as appears necessary.

The Wisconsin proposal is modeled closely upon a system that has been in effect in the state of New York for some years and has successfully withstood constitutional challenges in the courts, including the United States supreme court.

The thorny issue here has been the constitutional command for the separation of church and state. In a U. S. court decision of five years ago, Justice Byron White, writing for a court majority of six members, wrote that the plan merely makes available to all children the benefits of a general program of textbook loans, that books were furnished at the request of the pupil and that ownership remains, in effect, with the state, that no funding or other assistances were furnished to church-related schools, that the financial benefits were to the parents and children and not to the schools, that only secular books and not religious materials, could receive approval for loans, and that the law could not be shown in any way to have coerced the plaintiffs as individuals in the practice of their religion.

If the Wisconsin legislature is disposed to accommodate the long disputed parochial school assistance issue, the text book lending plan is one that appears reasonable and has been shown to be constitutionally valid.

Cry of bingo will be heard again

MADISON —It is now evident that after more than a century of absolute prohibition, the cry of "Bingo" will resound in a thousand halls and basements as a means of luring contributions for the work of church, fraternal, veterans and other noncommercial and tax exempt sponsors whose members cannot or won't provide the financial support such groups believe they need.

The legislature's response to the pressures for bingo was even stronger than neutral observers might have expected on the basis of the popular vote ratifying the constitutional revision last spring. For the first time in the history of the state voters made it possible for the legislature to endorse what had hitherto been defined as a lottery and therefore illegal.

The explanation probably lies in the fact that every politician realized that there is an active and highly organized pressure for the introduction of licensed bingo, while the resistance, numerically strong as it was shown to be in the last count at the polls, has never been so well defined, articulate and visible.

Climbed on bandwagon

Even in those counties where the popular vote last April was reasonably close, legislators for the most part climbed on the bandwagon, although a gallery observer may be permitted to surmise that some of them were not altogether happy about it. As the articulate minority said so often, there will be an enormous temptation for illicit operations.

That possibility of circumvention of the machinery intended to confine the lottery activity to respectable and worthy licensees was inferentially acknowledged by the extraordinary care shown by the floorleaders of the cause in the final bill drafting. To the credit of Rep. Gerald Kleczka of Milwaukee and others involved, they have produced a measure that is probably as carefully written and hedged with safeguards as is possible in the hurly-burly of the legislative process.

The chief dispute on the Assembly floor related not to the legitimacy of the cause, but to the mechanics of licensing and supervision by the state. The pro-bingo forces regarded any attempt to change the original plan as a scheme to sabotage the entire effort. Yet the fact that the bill proposes a new compartment of bureaucracy in Madison with a supervising commission appointed by the governor and a "bingo czar" as he will inevitably become known to be chosen by the commission, is contrary to the whole thrust of administrative organization refinement and simplification in the state government lately.

Commission idea survives

At one point it seemed that the separate bingo commission plan would be derailed in favor of a transfer to the state Department of Revenue. But that failed when Secretary Edward Wiegner expressed a distaste for the idea of having any responsibility for the operation. One may wonder if that is sufficient cause to influence the legislature. Another move to transfer to the state Department of Justice, the logic of which was perhaps stronger, significantly enough failed on a tie vote. Atty. Gen. Robert Warren, of course, is a Republican. The most aggressive of the bingo champions are Democrats.

Many listeners to the tedious arguments on the Assembly floor may have wondered about this pell-mell rush to legitimatize an enterprise that was so long scorned and outlawed. It was plain that even the last ditch opponents who fought on in the full awareness that they had lost were not worried about closely supervised public games under state license and inspection, the profits dedicated to worthy causes. Their concern was, as they patiently repeated, that greedy illegitimate operators would somehow penetrate the protective screen of law, as suggested wisewhere in the country.

Yet there was the apparent mandate of the electorate, very likely influenced by the infusion of the newly enfranchised young. Moreover, it is probably difficult for the average politician who sees pornography shops, massage parlors, and nude dancing within a stone's throw of the Capitol to resist the pressure for state-regulated bingo.

Age gap among youngsters critical

Up at the lake this summer, we returned home from dinner out one evening, to find a dozen youngsters sitting on the living-room floor playing silly games. What pleased me immensely to see this sight was the fact that their ages ranged from nine up to 19.

Testifying not long ago before a Senate subcommittee on social problems, Dr. Margaret Mead, the distinguished anthropologist, remarked that one of the most critical defects in modern America is the compartmentalization of age groups, so that people tend to associate only with others in their same age bracket—with a lost sense of sympathy and understanding between the generations.

This is true among young people today, in a way it wasn't when I was young. The scene in the living-room that night carried me back to my own childhood in the 1920s, when my cousins and I and our friends all played together during the summers, from the first graders up to the college students, without any hint of condescension or loss of status.

In the intervening decades, however, our society tended more and more to become fissured—to the point where 16-year-olds or 14-year-olds or 12-year olds became locked within their own narrow age group, aspiring toward the older and looking down their noses at the younger.

But ages are traditionally supposed to form links, not barriers; we cannot learn appropriately from those older than us if they refuse to take part in anything with "little kids," and if the social goal is to grow up as fast as possible in terms of freedom and autonomy.

The accelerating compartmentalization of our time has resulted in the "teeny-bopper" who obscenely tries to imitate his older brother and sister, usually with disastrous results, rather than being content to be and do what is proper for a given age group. (Of course, even when I was young we all yearned to be older and be able to do things not now permitted; but this yearning was also coupled with much satisfaction in doing childish things as well.)

Age is a continuum, not a discrete series of breaks; 19 must remember what it was like to be nine, just as 39 must remember what it was like to be 19. Our sympathies must range forward and backward in time, if society is going to have any cohesion (and any ongoing satisfaction). We have already lost our grandparents (in the 19th-century sense of knowing them), and we are on the way toward losing our parents, in any emotionally supportive way.

But ages cannot exist within their own boundaries; it is a delusion to suppose they can. Each needs support from younger and older both; when such support is missing, society is bound only by a hostile symbiosis.

Nixon disputed on value of detente

Poor Mr. Nixon is entitled to such satisfaction as he deserves, and the other day at the press conference he was visibly buoyed by the "success" of his negotiations with the Soviet Union. By the vindication of detente. If it had not been —the President said in effect — for my painstaking approaches to the Soviet Union over the past year and a half, who knows what would have happened: a confrontation between American and Russian troops in the Mideast certainly, and, beyond that, perhaps even the dread world war. Presidents who avoid wars are certainly entitled to public gratitude, roughly in proportion as their ingenuity was responsible for avoiding that war.

I do not wish (here) to disparage Mr. Nixon's maneuverings of last week, merely to ask whether one should leap — as Mr. Nixon would have us do —to the conclusion that detente was the cornerstone of last week's success.

Surely it is reasonable to suppose that the Soviet Union does not desire a world war. At least not for so long as a world war would mean the destruction of the Soviet Union. I cannot imagine a Soviet leader disdaining to pick up the hot line to discuss a looming emergency with the President of the United States, on the grounds that said President had not a) recently travelled to Russia, b) recently offered American wheat for sale, or c) recently agreed to another round of relative U.S. disarmament.

Had crises before

We have faced crises with the Soviet Union before, and at times when the cold war was at its coldest. President Eisenhower landed American troops in Lebanon. A year or two later Khrushchev announced his intention of taking Berlin, and President Eisenhower announced his intention of hanging on to Berlin. Meanwhile, the leaders of the People's Republic of China announced their unswerving determination to seize the offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu. President Eisenhower ordered the 7th Fleet to patrol the relevant strait, and, as we all know, Quemoy and Matsu are still there. President Kennedy ordered Khrushchev to take his missiles out of Cuba and stuff them back into the socialist motherland, and Khrushchev did so.

It would not have been pleasing, for aesthetic reasons, if Presidents Eisenhower and Kennedy had, after these various crises, called press conferences at which they had said: If it had not been for the tough line taken with the Soviet Union, we'd have stood to lose in the offshore islands. . .in Berlin. . .in Cuba.

Mr. Nixon's contention that the Mideast cease-fire is a bloom of detente is preposterous. It is a pity that the reporters in the room were so anxious to turn the press conference into an examination of Watergate that no one asked the primary question, namely: Why did we come close to a confrontation with the Soviet Union in the Mideast?

Detente started formally in May of 1972, and here we were, October of 1973, and the Soviet Union a) provisions a war in the Mideast, b) threatens to intercede with Soviet military, and c) (this is the report from one news magazine), threatens physically to destroy the State of Israel, to whose independence the United States is formally pledged.

Now it does not surprise one that the Soviet Union was kept from carrying out its threats —we still have an army, and a navy, and an air force. What is surprising, for those who believe in detente, is that the Soviet Union is still making threats. The idea of detente is to stop making threats, to stop relying on force. Where has the Soviet Union shown a disposition to stop relying on force? Certainly not in its internal policies, where force is the routine empire of satellites, where force is the glue that sticks it all together. Far from vindicating the policy of detente, the events of last week proved that the Soviet Union is continuing to opportunize in behalf of its old imperialistic policies. It is, in a word, more of the same.

The next question to ask the President is: if we project the relative decrease in our military strength over the next five or six years, can you assure us that we would be in a position to stop the Soviet Union in a crisis of this sort?

And if not, what force is Israel going to rely upon, in her next war, to contain a Soviet-backed effort to destroy her?

Surely the Senate Foreign Relations Committee should, at this point, call in representatives of the chiefs of staff; and ask them the question: if the Soviet Union had called our bluff, what would we have done about it? It may be that as the situation gets hotter, President Nixon gets cooler. But all the while, the United States gets weaker.

Bertschy's the man for county office

100 YEARS AGO
Appleton Crescent, Nov. 1, 1873.

Jacob A. Bertschy, candidate for Outagamie Register of Deeds, has claimed Appleton his home about 15 years, counting the time he was absent with the Army of the Potomac.

He is generally known to the people of the County as an active, stirring man, thoroughly qualified for any city or county office. Agreeable in his manners and intercourse, prompt to attend to any business committed to his care, he is just the kind of person to make a popular official.

If the people of Outagamie study their own best interests, they will give him a rousing majority.

Prizewinners for the best costumes at the Kimberly Girl Scout Troop 67 Halloween party that week were Florence Sanderfoot, Marcella Gaffney, Beverly Williams, Margaret Friebel, Joan Nevers, Marlene Gossens, Ethel Van Zeeland and Eileen Vandenberg.

Neil Laflin was elected president of the Neenah High School Coin Club.

Jean Schlender was elected homecoming queen at Marion High School. The senior student also was a cheerleader.

10 YEARS AGO
Thursday, Oct. 31, 1963.

Keith Gehring rolled the first national honor count for the Appleton season when he totaled 712 with his games of 244, 237 and 231. He was playing in the Major Scratch League at Hahn's Alleys.

Winners in the Appleton Punt, Pass and Kick contest were Raymond Rydel, Gregory Russell, Tim Kelly and "Bobo" Hale. Each boy won in a different age group. Loren Lillge presented the awards.

Mary Frank was the first president of the newly organized art club at Kimberly High School. Kathy Jensen was vice president and Pat Friday, secretary-treasurer.

Potomac fever —

Using public funds for his private homes makes Nixon, the freedom leader, look like a freeloader.

Nixon described Ford's selection as a "new beginning." That's like calling an old party wheelhorse Secretariat.

The original Nixon cabinet has been replaced — with the possibility of the Supreme Court deciding on a new cabinet-maker.

Sugar, franks pace food cost increases

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sugar and frankfurters continue to sour Wisconsin's average grocery bill, The Associated Press' monthly survey of market prices indicated today.

The current survey of retail prices indicated shoppers could have been softening the sting of inflation by sticking to more nourishing items, such as hamburger, orange juice, eggs and peanut butter.

Only pennies separated the latest averaged prices of ground chuck, butter and milk from those reported for the same items in the same stores Sept. 1.

But typical prices for granulated sugar and chocolate chip cookies were

A pound of center-cut loin pork chops was $1.43 compared with $1.58 Sept. 1 and $1.37 Oct. 1. Orange juice, coffee, peanut butter, paper towels and detergent were virtually unchanged from Sept. 1.

A dozen grade A medium-white eggs averaged 71 cents, down 15 per cent from Sept. 1, and a quart of whole milk averaged 37 cents compared with 34 cents Sept. 1.

The 15-item shopping list's average total bill ranged from $11.06 in Milwaukee and $11.30 in West Bend to $11.96 in Ironwood, Mich., and $12.09 in La Crosse.

The accumulative average for Milwaukee, Waukesha, Sheboygan and Eau Claire was $11.50, compared with $11.26 Sept. 1 and $11.59 Oct. 1. These were the four cities with specifically comparable totals.

The over-all, nine-city, adjusted average was $11.63, compared with adjusted averages of $11.66 Sept. 1 and $11.58 Oct. 1.

But every reporting source showed some degree of sharp increase in the sugar and cookie departments, and the average price of a pound of beef frankfurter was $1.44 compared with $1.39 Oct. 1 and $1.23 Sept. 1.

The nine-city average for five pounds of granulated cane sugar was 85 cents compared with 80 cents Oct. 1 and 76 cents Sept. 1.

The survey contained some irregular price fluctations, possibly a reflection of some grocers' routine adjustment of price specials.

Other current statewide averages were six ounces of frozen orange juice 28.5 cents, a pound of regular-grind coffee $1.14, a pound of butter in quartered segments 99 cents, 12 ounces of creamed peanut butter 51 cents, a two-roll package of paper towel 50.5 cents, a 49-ounce box of washing machine detergent 87 cents, 17 ounces of fabric softener 58 cents, eight ounces of tomato sauce 16 cents, and a 14½-ounce pack of chocolate chip cookies 67 cents.

Some comparable averaged prices Sept. 1 were orange juice 29 cents, coffee $1.13, butter 97 cents, peanut butter 51 cents, towels 50 cents, detergent 87 cents, fabric softener 68 cents, tomato sauce 14 cents, and cookies 80 cents.

In seven cities surveyed for the Oct. 1 report, averaged prices had ranged as high as $1.27 for ground chuck and $1.06 for butter.

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The Wisconsin Judicial Council has submitted a petition to the Wisconsin Supreme Court proposing the first major review of the state's rules of civil procedure since 1857.

The proposed rules, sent to Court members today, follow the lead of 26 other states in conforming to federal rules and would, according to Council Secretary Richard Malmgren, provide greater judicial supervision of civil procedures and assure speedier litigation.

The rules will be printed in the December issue of the Wisconsin Law Review and are scheduled as the major agenda item at the Annual Judicial Conference in Milwaukee in January. One whole day of the Mid-Winter State Bar convention in February will also be devoted to the proposed rules.

Malmgren said that it is hoped that a public hearing could be held in the spring. The rules would have to be approved by the Supreme Court to become part of the statutes.

Under the proposed rules, a civil suit would require that a summons first be filed with the clerk of courts, thereby reducing the number of harassment suits that involve only clients and attorneys and never get to court.

The rules also demand that a scheduling conference be held shortly after the complaint is served so that clients know when they might expect to get to court. Again, under present civil procedure, court dates may be left entirely up to the discretion of the attorneys.

"This will mean that the action will get moving," Malmgren said, "rather than just sitting for a couple years. It will also save clients money because they will get to court faster."

The state bar has not yet taken a position on the rules, but six of its members served on the Civil Rules Committee which drew up the proposals. The committee has been working on the rules for three years.

Wisconsin copied the rules of civil procedure from New York over a century ago, adopting the present rules on March 1, 1857. The rules were originally written by David Dudley Field in the early 1840s and stood as the basic guideline for many states.

"Adopting the Federal practice concepts of a scheduling conference and broader pre-trial discovery will aid the Wisconsin court system," said Malmgren, "and, most importantly, Wisconsin citizens in achieving a speedy and just determination of civil litigation on its merits."

Licensing, inspection for church potluck?

By PETER B. SEYMOUR
Associated Press Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — When a touch of illness suddenly begins making the rounds of the neighborhood, who is going to suspect the potato salad at yesterday's church potluck?

State health inspectors have been equipped with new enforcement powers to help eliminate food poisoning hazards from the occasional fund-raising dinners, testimonial banquets, open-age cookouts and countless other civic food functions handled by citizens who lack the restaurateur's professional knowledge of sanitation.

"It probably would be rather amazing to know the number of people who get ill on food poisoning, writing it off as just a touch of flu," Roy K. Clary says.

Clary is chief of the state hotel and restaurant section of the Department of Health and Social Services. His agency's inspectors handle licensing of commercial food services, protecting the restaurant patron against improperly prepared, cooked and refrigerated meals.

The agency's licensing authority was expanded to include any church, fraternal group, Boy Scout troop, veterans' organization, nonprofit club or other civic institution sponsoring public meals.

Dr. George Handy, state health officer, said many nonprofit organizations have groused about having to buy a $20 annual permit and meet the same equipment and personnel standards expected of restaurants.

But the new requirements, Clary said, are accompanied by access to the state's programs for instructing such groups on methods of guarding against food poisoning, a provision which benefits the potluck sponsor while protecting the guests.

His agency's inspection and training services, he added, are financed entirely by permit fee revenue, not by taxes.

The rules involve any organization which sponsors four or more days of public meals in any 12-month period, and are aimed at well-intentioned but inexperienced citizens who unwittingly poison each other at such affairs.

They do not apply necessarily to private groups feeding only their own members, Clary said.

"The main concern," he said, "is the large mass-feeding operation."

"Main problems are with churches which are not equipped to feed 500 or 600 persons; volunteers not familiar with mass food handling, and with donated food, such as dishes brought from home and spoiling before they can be served," he said.

There have been several cases involving meals served by groups which have borrowed or rented school kitchens.

"Normally, schools are pretty well equipped, so such cases are usually just a problem with folks being unfamiliar with food handling," Clary said.

"It takes a bit of education to realize the importance of keeping food properly refrigerated or heated, or covered as protection against the food server who may be unaware of the danger in a casual cough," he said.

The groups and affairs specifically subject to license and restaurant standards are not easily defined, "and we get a lot of inquiries," he said. But complaints are not as severe as some officials had anticipated, he said.

"It is rather surprising. We have received very few complaints. Basically, they think there is a lot of merit to the regulations," he said.

At least there seems to have been a need. In September, he said, a northern Wisconsin church "with facilities for feeding 60 or 70 persons found itself trying to feed 640. Some health problems resulted from that one."

William Haansen, head of the Agriculture Department's Bureau of Foods, told a Madison food safety conference last month that expansion of license requirements had been urged by restaurants which complained about the competition from unsupervised church socials.

Handy told the conference the churches complained about the new licensing on grounds nonprofit and parochial institutions should be excluded.

"I don't care whether they are Catholic, Armenian or Polish," Handy said. "We are still responsible for their health."

There are about 10 pages of rules under the state hotel and restaurant statute.

They govern the quality of rest rooms, kitchen sinks, running water, cooking utensils, dish washing, personnel sanitation, clothing, even the closet in which mop buckets are stored.

The standards must be met before the state can issue a permit. Tre are daily fines for operating without permits.

Clary said his agency prefers to work with the meal sponsor in an educational capacity.

But if a group get stubborn about obeying the rules, he said, the matter can be referred to a prosecutor.

Soap distributor penalized for their sales tactics

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A $1.5 million judgment has been signed in Milwaukee County Circuit Court against Royalite Products Corp. of Upland, Calif., and four of its representatives, Atty. Gen. Robert Warren said Wednesday.

Warren said the forfeitures were the largest in the state's history and among the largest awarded nationally in a consumer case. He said the state would seek enforcement of the court order in California.

The judgment, signed by Judge Robert C. Cannon, enjoins the company from promoting chain distributor schemes, Warren said. Such sales tricks are illegal in Wisconsin.

It awards more than $69,000 in restitution payments to 36 Wisconsin citizens.

Included in the awards were civil forfeitures to the state of $673,000 each against Royalite and its president, Richard T. Price of La Verne, Calif., he said.
